AF Transport Wing Changes Point Way To Revised Fiscal '58 Defense Structure

The Armed Forces, their punching power increased, are getting ready for consequent budget belt-tightening changes that will be concentrated in fiscal '58.

The first step was Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's 26 November statement on Roles and Missions, in which he clipped Army plans to use intermediate Range Ballistic Missiles and called for a JCS look into the possibility of reducing Tactical Air Command wings in favor of newly available organic tactical support from such Army weapons as the Corporal and Honest John, as well as the Air Force Matador.

But the Defense Department decided not to wait on the JCS analysis before cutting TAC.

A decision has been made to shift TAC's three heavy (Douglas C-124) transport wings from 18th Air Force control at Donaldson AFB, S. C., to a new Single Military Airlift Agency, which will be MATS.

(The Journal publishes on Page 11 the complete text of the Pentagon's new directive on military airlift; all Services are affected by the order.)

There were reports at the Pentagon this week that top-level consideration is being given to the possibility of a later shift of the Air Force's eight medium troop carrier wings from TAC to MATS.

Thus, the formal Air Force wing structure could be slashed from a one-time goal of 137 wings to 126 wings, or even fewer if objectives of the Roles and Missions paper are realized.

Civilian transportation experts at the Pentagon report that the plan to move the three heavy transport wings from TAC to MATS was concurred in by all members of the JCS, though there is some reason to believe that the decision (see Memo, Page 12) was made at the last minute. There seems little reason to believe that Army leaders, concerned about availability of airlift for airborne units,

MOVIES OPEN TO RETIRED

The doors of movie houses at Army and AF installations will be opened to retired military families and Service widows next month.

New regulations drawn up by the Army-AF Motion Picture Service—and now awaiting final processing in the Adjutant General's Office—will authorize admission of retired personnel and their dependents to movie houses upon presentation of appropriate identification.

Retired families of the Navy and Marine Corps already enjoy such privileges.

Under the new rules, widows who have not remarried and minor children of deceased personnel also will be permitted to attend Army and AF theaters.

When accompanied by the military member, wives and children will not be required to show identification.

When unaccompanied, they may obtain entrance with any of the following identification forms: DD Form 2AF or 2AF(Res); DD Form 720—Military Dependent Identification Card; and DA Form 999—Privilege Identification Card.

Christmas Message

President Eisenhower has addressed the following special message to the Men and Women of Our Armed Forces:

"To the men and women of the Armed Forces, I send my Christmas greetings.

"In this season, as we think of peace, the Nation does not forget the efforts and sacrifices of those who protect our country from its enemies. May the blessings of health, in body and in spirit, be with you throughout the New Year.

"As we celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace, we renew and fortify our hope and efforts for a better world for all men."

PX's Ready Sale Of Army Uniforms

Problems of getting new uniforms for Army officers in Post Exchanges throughout the world were discussed at a special conference of Exchange Service and domestic and overseas major command representatives 17 Dec. in New York City.

Exchanges have been assigned responsibility by the Army to stock the Army Blue uniforms, and the Army Green uniforms fabricated of officers' elastique material, Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Chief of the Exchange Service, told the conferees.

He noted that the PX can anticipate an unprecedented peacetime demand for the items, since they will not be carried in Army Quartermaster Sales Stores. Male

Gen. Twining Tells USAFA Cadets How Early Army Pilot Learned to Fly by Mail

Anecdotes telling how an early military pilot learned to fly by correspondence and how Jimmy Doolittle rode the undercarriage of a landing airplane embellished the Wright Memorial Lecture given by General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, to the cadets at the U. S. Air Force Academy on 18 Dec.

Said the Air Force Chief of Staff: "There was the humorous example of dogged courage set by Lieutenant Foulois, who learned to fly by correspondence course. Actually, he had taken a few lessons from the Wright brothers up in Ohio, but before he ever learned to make a landing, he and his airplane were sent to San Antonio.

"THERE, LIEUTENANT FOULOIS would make excellent take-offs and good flights while in the air. But, each time he tried to land, he crashed. While his plane was being rebuilt, he would send a letter to the Wright brothers and describe exactly what he had done. The Wrights would mail back an analysis and some suggestions for improvement. Then Foulois would take off and proceed to crash again.

"He finally learned to land the airplane, and went on to become one of our most famous early pilots and later Chief of the Air Corps in the 1930's.

"Of course, not all demonstrations of courage led to an immediate advancement in aviation. I can recall General

Hap Arnold telling about his first encounter with a Second Lieutenant named Doolittle.

"IT SEEMS THAT JIMMY DOOLITTLE was looking for something to do one day, so he made a bet that he could ride on the undercarriage of an airplane during a landing. Once his bet was taken, Jimmy approached the pilot of an airplane which had been practicing landings, and asked for a ride. The innocent pilot agreed, and regretted it soon thereafter. Once airborne, Jimmy left his seat, climbed down to the lower wing, and then underneath to seat himself on the cross bar between the landing wheels. The pilot tried frantically, but he couldn't talk Jimmy into coming back up, so finally he had no choice but to land with Doolittle sitting down there on the landing gear.

"After the landing, Jimmy crawled out from under the airplane, walked over to the loser, and casually demanded payment of the bet.

"Perhaps in this way, Jimmy helped to convince us of the need for a retractable landing gear.

"Nevertheless, Hap Arnold took steps to insure that Doolittle's courage was directed toward more worthwhile projects in the future, and Jimmy Doolittle's later record as a courageous airman both in peace and war is unparalleled in our history."

Army Puts Squeeze On Enlisted Ranks, Aim Is To Improve Promotions For NCO's

THE Army's program to vitalize its Noncommissioned Officer Corps is going to take a major step forward in 1957. The result will be that soldiers who cannot meet prescribed standards will be demoted and, in some cases, eliminated from active duty.

This will open up promotion spaces for qualified soldiers in critically needed areas who now are blocked from higher rank because of the post-Korea "hump", in the enlisted grade structure.

Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, says the objectives of the new program are to speed up promotion, reduce averages in certain MOS's and retain the surplus people in other MOS's where the Army is short.

General Weible says the basic long-range objective is to "insure that we keep only well qualified people and give them an opportunity to move ahead."

Included in the new procedures are plans to use minimum Army Aptitude Area test scores and a physical examination to determine eligibility for reenlistment. MOS Proficiency Tests will be used to evaluate qualifications for grade and MOS, the results of which will be employed for personnel actions including promotion, reduction, reclassification or possibly elimination. Certain positions which carry responsibility or require greater training and "know how," are to be upgraded.

General Weible said that individuals who are qualified for their jobs and who have given good service to the Army have no reason to be concerned about their eligibility for retention under the new criteria. "In actuality," he said, "these qualified people will have a better chance for advancement as we stop 'carrying' the unqualified. We will have to use sound judgment in administering the new procedures. We will apply the standards to fit individual cases depending upon their merit. For example, if a man doesn't meet the physical examination standard for reenlistment because of combat wounds or has other physical limitations which do not keep him from performing acceptable military service in his grade, branch and MOS, we will make an exception. We will also make exceptions for men who don't meet the minimum standard on their Army Aptitude Area test scores if they have performed outstandingly in combat or have otherwise proved their ability under pressure."

The Army put a plan into effect in February 1956 called the "NCO and Specialist Vitalization Program." This program provided for mandatory retirement upon completion of 30 years' active Federal Service; retirement of enlisted personnel who have completed twenty years' active Federal Service and have reached the age of 55; mandatory reversion of retired personnel to retired status at the completion of their current active duty tour; and relief of Army Reserve and National Guard enlisted men in grades E-6 and E-7 from active duty on completion of their present tour, unless they enlist in the Regular Army in their present grade or accept reduction to the grade of E-5.

The provisions of the Vitalization Program will remain in effect; however, this program is long-range in nature and the full impact of its provisions will not begin to show up until about 1960. For this reason, the new procedures have been adopted to accelerate the Vitalization Program.

General Gruenther Speaks of The Shield, Warns Of NATO Defense Gap In Farewell

On Monday, 28 Dec. at Ft. McNair, Va., top Government officials, military leaders and foreign dignitaries will participate in a retirement review for General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA, USMA '18. On Monday, 17 Dec. the former Supreme Allied Commander Europe was at the Pentagon to meet with newsmen there and, in response to their request, to give his assessment of the NATO defense picture. With the New Year, General Gruenther assumes the office of President of the American Red Cross.

NATO must strengthen its shield of ground forces and bolster the effectiveness of its air defenses—"now our weakest link"—to meet the "hostility and implacability" that must be expected from the Russians "for some time ahead."

For this reason, says General Alfred M. Gruenther, the strength of the Seventh Army in Germany, under command of Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, USA, cannot be reduced without adversely affecting NATO security.

The former SACEUR, who has been succeeded by General Lauris Norstad, USAF, forecast that action will be taken to improve NATO air defenses. He said that ultimately NATO is likely to have an air defense setup similar to that under command of General Earle E. Partridge, USAF, for the defense of Continental United States.

General Gruenther made these observations to Pentagon newsmen at an informal meeting on 17 December, which was just six years minus a day of the anniversary when General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower was named to lead the new Free World force in Europe.

General Gruenther, completing six years of brilliant service with NATO, said he leaves "with a great faith in the alliance, which despite strains and weaknesses, is going to be able to come out stronger than ever before."

General Gruenther recounted how the Soviets have been striving to get across the idea that there are only two great powers—themselves and the United States—and that the rest of the nations would be best advised to stand on the sidelines.

"Our job," said General Gruenther, "has been to make clear to our allies that our interests are essentially the same as theirs." He said that this feeling of partnership was strengthened by the recent NATO Council meeting in Paris.

General Gruenther said that these sessions resulted in a reevaluation of Soviet activities, "debunking" of the Soviet "smile technique," reaffirmation of NA-

TO strategic concepts, an enlightened review of the need for political discussions among member nations, and a forthright review of the U. S. position with regard to providing modern weapons to our allies.

The general noted that for the first time the U. S. has said it will be willing to supply models of certain weapons with atomic capabilities for possible production by NATO members.

Concerning the need for maintaining the strength of the Seventh Army, General Gruenther said that he could not yet be satisfied with the "shield strength" of NATO. He said that this does not mean that the numerical strength of some of the divisions may not be revised in accordance with new tactics, but his remarks suggested that NATO chiefs would oppose vigorously any effort to cut the overall effectiveness of the forces under General Clarke and his superior, General Henry I. Hodes, USA, C-in-C of USAREUR.

Commenting on the buildup of the German Army, General Gruenther said that the reduced goal of 270,000 has been lowered further to 135,000 for the next year, but added that by April "there should be the elements of five fairly good-sized divisions."

As to air strength, General Gruenther told of progress made throughout NATO, and noted the growth of airfields from 20 to 140. But he emphasized that it will be necessary to provide better integration of air defense units.

Thus, as he prepared to leave active Army Service, General Gruenther leaves the Nation with this summing-up:

• NATO has made significant progress. There are stresses and strains and it would be foolish not to view these realistically. But these difficulties can be overcome and NATO strength increased to meet the ever-present Soviet threat. Major factors in assuring NATO strength are the continued combat-readiness of the Seventh Army and other ground elements of NATO and improvements in air defense—plus, of course, the need for all members to accept "the responsibility of partnership."

• Additionally, says General Gruenther, there must be constant concern that a Soviet "miscalculation" could lead to war. But he maintains that the danger of such a mistake will be less if NATO makes clear its determination to resist aggression with adequate force.

• In short, NATO must be properly prepared and must make known to the Communists the extent of power that it possesses and the fact that this power would be employed at an instant's notice in event of attack.

82d Will Dedicate War Museum At Ft. Bragg

Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, USA, Commander of the 82d Airborne Division in WW II and currently chief of Research and Development for the Department of the Army, will be among the former commanders of the 82d who will attend dedication ceremonies 18 Jan. of the new War Museum at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Sgt. Alvin C. York, WW I holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, also will attend if his health permits. Sergeant York was a member of the 82d during WW I.

Although the Museum will be completed before Christmas, it will not be officially opened until later because the Division Historical Society has additional work to do on the structure.

MAJ. GEN. EARL C. BERGQUIST, USA, Post Commander, Ft. Dix, N. J., presents a ten thousand dollar check, earmarked for Hungarian relief, to the Burlington county chapter of the American Red Cross for the troops at Ft. Dix. F. William Van Ness (left), chairman of the Burlington chapter, said that it was the largest single contribution thus far received in his county's campaign. (Secretary Brucker's Congratulations, P. 13)

Col. Machen Gets 22d

Col. Avery M. Cochran, USA, commander of the 4th Infantry Division's 22d Regiment will leave Ft. Lewis, Wash., for assignment in the Far East in January. He will be succeeded by Col. Edwin A. Machen, Jr., USA, who has been with the military advisory group in Iran.

Colonel Cochran came to Lewis a year ago from Finland where he was military attache.

New Adjutant At Dix

Col. Gordon C. Jones, USA, former assistant Army attache in Finland for three years, has been appointed post adjutant general at Ft. Dix, N. J. He succeeds Lt. Col. Robert C. Fordyce, USA, who has been assigned to duty in the Pentagon in Washington.

The colonel, his wife and three children will make their home at 1 Winding Way in Mount Holly, N. J.

NEW SHOULDER PATCH for members of the Ordnance Training Command at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., including The Ordnance School, and at The Ordnance Guided Missile School, Huntsville, Ala. A crimson diamond with rounded corners will bear a yellow torch handle surmounted with the Ordnance Corps bomb insignia, also in yellow. The patch, made in the Corps' colors, will replace the one now worn by all technical services and administrative personnel which is a blue star upon a white scalloped background inlaid in a red circle.

Preventive Medicine Training

The Army's first formal residency training program in preventive medicine will begin 1 July 1957.

Regular Army Medical Corps officers or qualified civilian physicians who accept commissions in the Regular Army are eligible to participate in this program.

This residency is a three-year program providing both civilian and military training.

Col. Harris To Korea

Col. Russel O. Harris, USA, for the last 19 months chief of the ROTC division at Fourth Army headquarters, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., has received orders assigning him to Korea and will depart 13 Jan.

Colonel Harris' wife Bernice (Jackie), and daughter, Cathy Sue, will reside in San Antonio while he is in Korea.

New C.O. At Boston

Col. Elmer B. Thayer, USA, has assumed command of Boston Army Base, succeeding Lt. Col. George J. Klemm, USA.

Colonel Thayer, USMA '28, was made Professor of Military Science & Tactics at Boston College in 1950 and served four years. In 1954 he was sent to the Panama Canal Zone where he became Inspector General of U.S. Army Caribbean at Ft. Amador. In June 1955 he was assigned to First Army Headquarters and made Inspector General of First Army.

Colonel Thayer is married to the former Sarah A. Spivey of Selma, N. C. and makes his home at 103 Oxford Road, Newton Centre, Mass. They have four children: William, 18; Robert, 16; Geraldine, 14, and Richard, 11.

LT. GEN. JAMES E. MOORE, USA, Commanding General, Ryukas Command and IX Corps, welcomes His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York and Military Vicar of the Armed Forces of the United States, to Okinawa. This is the sixth consecutive year that the Cardinal has visited troops in the Far East Command during the Christmas season.

Col. Potter Will Head Sixth Army Engineers

Col. Seymour A. Potter, USA, will become the Sixth Army Engineer at the Presidio of San Francisco in March 1957.

Since January 1955 he has been Assistant for Policy Planning in the Office of the Chief of Engineers. He succeeded in that post Brig. Gen. Thomas A. Lane, USA, who then became Engineer Commissioner for the District of Columbia.

Colonel Potter will replace Col. F. H. Falkner, USA, formerly Resident Member of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors in Washington, D. C., who is retiring from active service.

Insurance and Benefits

The new 6th Edition of the U.S. Military Academy textbook, "Principles of Insurance and Government Benefits for Service Personnel," has been published by The Military Service Publishing Co. of Harrisburg, Pa.

Written by Capt. James M. Garrett, III, USA, and associates in the Social Sciences at West Point, the text has been extensively revised to explain the many changes brought about by the recent Survivor's Benefits legislation. The book outlines general programs for officers and men showing the interrelation of the new dependency and indemnity compensation, social security, government insurance and other government benefits with commercial insurance, and illustrates specific program in chart form.

The book is 213 pages and retails for $2.

USN Seeks Applicants For EDO, AEDO And SDO

The Navy is seeking applications from permanent Line officers who wish to shift to Engineering, Aeronautical Engineering and Special Duty categories.

Naval Reservists, both active duty and on inactive duty, also are eligible to apply for augmentation into the Regular Navy in these classifications.

Applications may be made for the following designations: Engineering Duty—general and electronics (1400), ordnance, (1450); Aeronautical Engineering—general and electronics (1510), aerology (1530); Special Duty—communications (1610), naval intelligence (1630), and public information (1650).

Eligible to apply are Regular Line male officers not above three-stripe rank, with dates of rank of 1 April 1955, and junior; and Naval Reserve officers not above the grade of lieutenant with dates of rank of 1 May 1952, and junior.

Applications should be submitted through the chain of command in time to reach the Bureau of Naval Personnel by 1 Feb. 1957.

Complete details are contained in BuPers Notice 1120, dated 29 November.

Join Regular Navy

The Navy's Augmentation Continuing Selection Board has recommended 202 Reserve and Temporary officers for Regular commissions.

Of this number, 154 are Line officers and 48 are in the Staff Corps.

Nearly half of the selected Line officers are Naval Aviators.

Numbers to receive appointments, if they successfully complete all administrative requirements, are: Line, 58; Line Women, six; Aviation Line, 90; Supply Corps, 21; Chaplain Corps, seven; Civil Engineer Corps, seven; Medical Service Corps, two; and, Nurse Corps, 11.

The board convened on 30 October. Alphabetical lists of the selectees follow:

USN Commissions 920

Ensigns At Newport

The Navy gained 920 officers on 14 December when the 29th Class of the Officer Candidate School, Newport, R. I., was graduated.

Of the total number who donned gold bars, 567 will report to ships, 91 to aviation ground billets, and 179 to engineering and Staff Corps duties; The remaining 123 new officers go to special programs such as guided missiles, salvage, underwater demolition, and naval security.

VAdm. Charles Welborn, Jr., USN, Commander, Second Fleet, welcomed the ensigns into the Navy and presented awards to the top 20 men in the class.

Honor man with a 3.77 average was Ens. James C. Todd, Jr., USN, who has been assigned to the destroyer USS Willard Keith. He is the son of Col. and Mrs. James C. Todd of Hargrave Military Academy, Chatham, Va.

Second place honors were won by Ens. Leonard B. Hittner, USN, who averaged 3.65. Third and fourth slots were won by Ensigns Robert L. Talley, USN, and Richard K. Prien, USN, with 3.62 and 3.61 averages. Ensign Prien is the son of Maj. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Prien of Hq. Squadron, 10th Tactical Recon. Wing, APO 123, New York.

USS Gainard Returns

From Sixth Fleet Tour

The destroyer, USS Gainard, commanded by Cdr. Samuel E. Watson, USN, recently returned to Newport, R. I., ending a five-month Mediterranean tour during which she steamed nearly 35,000 nautical miles.

While operating with the Sixth Fleet,
the Gainard served as a screening unit in a carrier task force and as a radar picket ship. During her tour, she visited the ports of Ponta Del Gade, Azores;
Gibraltar; Palma, Spain; Leghorn, Italy;
Cannes, France; Palermo and Augusta Bay, Sicily; Suda Bay, Crete; and the Shakdom of Bahrain.

The Gainard is now serving as flagship for Capt. Henry Williams, Jr., USN, Commander, Destroyer Division 12.

Compact carrier-based A-bomber proves jet mechanic's dream

Ask Navy fliers what they think of the Douglas A4D Skyhawk and you'll hear about its ease of handling, its speed, its high lift and low drag.

But carrier flying is a team operation, and the men who keep A4D in the air have an equally interesting point of view. Most compact aircraft of its kind, Skyhawk's design emphasizes a combination of strength and speed with extreme simplicity (no need to fold its wings, for instance).
Result: jet mechanics call A4D
a maintenance man's dream.

Douglas A4D Skyhawk tops 650 m.p.h.

Development of the A4D
Skyhawk by Douglas gave the Navy part of what it needs to keep a strong guard over vast ocean frontiers, but the Navy also needs young men to fly and service its aircraft. If you agree that defense is everybody's business, investigate a Navy career.

AF Medicare Forms Set For Distribution

Air Force officials expect application forms (DD 1171 and 1172) for Dependents' Authorization for Medical Care cards to be available for distribution to the field shortly after 1 Jan.

The cards themselves (DD Form 1173) will be ready for distribution in March.

Dependents eligible for medical treatment at either military or civilian hospital facilities may use other identification means, such as their Military Dependent Identification Card (DD Form 720), until they receive the new medicare cards.

AF Retirement Guide Completely Rewritten

A completely rewritten and updated "AF Guide for Retirement" pamphlet has been sent to the printer by Hq USAF Retired Activities Branch.

The pamphlet contains up-to-date information for AF officers and airmen contemplating retirement, as well as for those already retired. It includes general retirement procedures and outlines the rights, benefits, privileges and restrictions for those eligible for retirement pay.

The retirement guide is based on current regulations and law pertaining to retirement of AF personnel.

A copy of the new pamphlet will be distributed to every retired member of the AF as soon as it is printed.

AF members now on active duty will automatically receive copies of the guide as they near eligibility for retirement. They will receive copies in sufficient time to make retirement plans. It won't be necessary for individuals to apply for their copies, due to the automatic distribution planned.

The AF Guide for Retirement contains eight parts. They are: General Information, including retirement methods; Retired Pay; Travel and Transportation; Hospitalization and Medical Care; Employment, and Benefits Administered by the Veterans Administration.

Cut TAC Wings

would prefer having the combat transports under MATS, rather than the 18th Air Force, commanded by Maj. Gen. Chester McCarthy, USAFR, which has developed specialized skills in moving Army troops and equipment.

The changes in the Air Force wing structure are but one phase of the program to modify the composition of the Armed Forces in line with new weapons and tactical concepts.

As THE JOURNAL went to press, the Army reportedly was preparing to announce plans for streamlining its 19 tactical divisions in a program that is expected to take about two years.

SAC'S BEEN BUSY

REPORTS that the Strategic Air Command had been particularly active during recent weeks were confirmed this week by General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, Chief of Staff.

In a speech delivered 18 Dec. at the USAF Academy, Lowry AFB, Colo., General Twining revealed that during a two-week period ending 11 Dec., SAC conducted "an intensive exercise" of its jet bomber force.

Involved were more than 1000 B-47's flying non-stop missions which averaged 8000 miles each. General Twining said:

"This is the first time that the nation's Strategic Air Force has tested the operational capability of its strike force in such large numbers during such a short period of time."

The general added that just prior to this exercise SAC had sent eight B-52's on simulated combat missions covering more than 24 hours each and including flights as long as 17,000 miles.

"This demonstrated ability of nations to deliver powerful weapons by air," General Twining declared, "has clearly taken the profit out of war."

A statement was expected momentarily spelling out details of a plan which would slice up to 4000 men from standard infantry divisions.

Best information available at the Pentagon, as last-minute revisions were made on the fiscal '58 budget, was that previous plans for major cuts in manpower will be delayed, although some reductions, particularly in the Army, are seen likely.

It appears certain, however, that the Air Force will operate with less than its previously planned 137 wings and that the Army will have fewer soldiers in combat divisions. The point will be made that this is possible because the striking power of Air Force and Army elements has been vastly increased.

Less has been said about any plans for changes in the composition of the Navy and Marine Corps. However, it is understood that Secretary Wilson and the JCS are looking at the entire military picture and are confronted with the necessity of finding ways to keep military spending from getting out of line with overall Administration budget objectives.

New Target Device Uses Five Miles of Steel Cable

A new target-tow reel device, called the Bee-Jay, designed for use in gunnery and rocketry training and missile practice by supersonic jet aircraft, has been developed jointly by the Air Force and Northrop Aircraft, Inc.

The Bee-Jay utilizes five miles of steel cable, a ram-air operated reeling mechanism and a low-drag, highly-reflective plastic, whirling target to provide a target for jet fighters.

MAJ. GEN. JAMES E. BRIGGS, USAF (left), Superintendent of the U. S. Air Force Academy, inspects authenticated copies of the World War I Treaty of Versailles and the Treaty of Saint Germain, presented to the Academy for its Library. The copies were presented by Lt. Col. Arthur N. Budd, USA-Ret., through Col. I. Louis Hoffman, USAF, shown standing next to General Briggs. Colonel Hoffman is hospital commander at Westover AFB, Mass., where Colonel Budd was a patient last year. Colonel Budd desired the Academy to have the treaty books as a token of his appreciation and friendly feeling, based on his contact with the Air Force through the Westover hospital. Also shown above are Lt. Col. George V. Fagan, USAF, Director of the Academy Library, and Brig. Gen. Robert M. Stillman, USAF, Commandant of Cadets. The treaties were authenticated by Stephen Pichon, then French Minister of Foreign Affairs. They are printing overruns and are duplicates of the copies sent to the signatory governments.

SAC NCO Graduates Pass 6000 Mark

Graduation exercises at SAC's four academies for 371 master sergeants last week brought to 6,370 the number of command non-commissioned officers who have completed the leadership training courses.

At Second Air Force's Barksdale AFB, La., academy, Brig. Gen. Clarence T. Edwinton, USAF, Commander of the 42d Air Division, presented special awards to Honor Graduate M/Sgt. James R. Ford, Carswell AFB, Tex., Commandant Award Winner M/Sgt. B. J. Hartgenbush, Barksdale AFB, and Academic Award Winner M/Sgt. James F. Bryant, MacDill AFB, Florida.

Maj. Gen. William P. Fisher, USAF, Deputy Commander of Eighth Air Force, gave the graduation address at the Westover AFB, Mass., and presented special awards to Honor Graduate M/Sgt. John C. Krier, Smoky Hill AFB, Kan., Commandant Award Winner M/Sgt. Norman E. Fisher, Plattsburgh AFB, N. Y., and Academic Award Winner M/Sgt. Bernard M. Beck, Plattsburgh AFB.

At Fifteenth Air Force's March AFB, Calif., Brig. Gen. Horace M. Wade, USAF, SAC's Director of Personnel delivered the graduation address and presented special awards to Honor Graduate and Academic Award Winner, M/Sgt. Andrew L. McClean, Biggs AFB, Tex., and Commandant Award Winner, M/Sgt. Robert H. Cannon, Walker AFB, N. M.

Col. Alonzo A. Towner, 7th Air Division Surgeon presented the graduation address at 7th's West Drayton Academy, England, and presented special awards to Honor Graduate and Academic Award Winner, M/Sgt. John R. Case, sr., of Upper Heyford Air Base. Colonel Towner presented M/Sgt. Oliver R. Strandberg of Lakenheath Air Base with the Commandant award.

Commands Mallory AFS

Col. Charles A. Piddock, deputy comptroller for the Air Materiel Command, has been named commander of Mallory Air Force Station, Tenn., effective 31 Jan.

He replaces Col. W. P. Sloan, who has been transferred to Brookley AFB, Ala. A 1932 West Point Graduate, Colonel Piddock was commander of Alaska Air Force Depot, Elmendorf AFB, Alaska, from 1953 to 1955.

MATS Medical Group Augments U. S. Schedule

MATS has begun a twice-weekly flight schedule from McGuire AFB, N. J., to Travis AFB, Calif., to provide additional patient aeromedical evacuation.

The trans-continental trips will augment other air transportation of medical patients within the United States. Movement of patients is under the supervision of the 1st Aeromedical Transport Group with headquarters at Brooke AFB, Tex.

The two weekly trips will be routed from McGuire via Andrews AFB, Md., Scott AFB, Ill., and Lowry AFB, Colo., to Travis. The new MATS schedule will greatly speed the movement of patients within the country, and also add to their comfort and well being through the use of the pressurized Douglas C-118 Liftmasters. ARDC BEATS THE HEAT Transparent rubber is being tested by the Air Force Reserve and Development Command as a way to beat the heat on airplane windshields.

The rubber will be used as an interlayer in windshield glass of new supersonic Air Force airplanes. With this new material, it is expected that airplane windshields will be able to withstand twice as much heat from air friction at high speeds.

Since airplanes have surpassed the speed of sound, surface temperatures have greatly increased. Frictional heat can reach such intensity that the flexible, transparent plastic now used as a windshield interlayer softens and begins to lose strength. When its strength is gone, the interlayer is unable to prevent the glass from shattering if cracked.

The new rubber interlayer is being developed by ARDC's Wright Air Development Center (WADC), Dayton, Ohio, by the Dow Corning Corporation, Midland, Michigan. It retains adequate strength up to 350-degrees Fahrenheit as compared to the 180-degree Fahrenheit limit on present plastic interlayers.

SAC Renames Base To Honor Col. Schilling

The Strategic Air Command's Smoky Hill, Kans., AFB will be renamed Schilling AFB on 16 March 1957 in honor of famed WWII ace Col. David C. Schilling.

Then Inspector General of the 7th Air Division in England, Colonel Schilling was killed in an automobile accident last August near Lakenheath, England.

Col. James W. Wilson, USAF, is the Smoky Hill Commander.

A native of Leavenworth, Kans., Colonel Schilling enlisted as a flying cadet in 1939. He rose to Colonel by 1944.

One of the most highly decorated men of the Air Force with 132 combat missions in WWII and 23½ planes to his credit, Colonel Schilling was awarded the DSC with one Oak Leaf Cluster; the Silver Star with three Oak Leaf Clusters; the DFC with ten Oak Leaf Clusters; the Air Medal with 19 Oak Leaf Clusters; and the Commendation Medal.

For his feat of making the first non-stop jet fighter flight from England to the U. S. during the Summer of 1950 he won the coveted Harmon Trophy, emblematic of the outstanding aviator of that year. In July of 1952 Colonel Schilling commanded the deployment of 58 jet aircraft along with the entire personnel of the wing from Georgia to Japan. This flight won for him the Air Force Association trophy for the outstanding aviator of 1952.

Colonel Schilling is survived by his widow, the former Mary Eugenia Honniet of Raleigh, N. C.; two children, David C., Jr. and Carla; his mother, Mrs. Margaret Schilling; and a brother, Dr. John Schilling.

Honor B/G McCauley For Air Defense Work

Brig. Gen. James W. McCauley, USAF, Vice-Commander of Eastern Air Defense Force, was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit in a ceremony at Stewart AFB, N. Y. The award was presented by Maj. Gen. Norris B. Harbold, USAF, EADFC Commander.

It covered the period from May 1953 to September 1955 during which General McCauley was Commander of the 26th Air Division (Defense) at Roslyn, N. Y. The citation praised his conduct in being responsible for the air defense of the most heavily populated urban section of the United States. The 26th Air Division includes portions of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New England.

General and Mrs. McCauley (the former Ruth Fryar) have two sons, James W., Jr., 20, a second classman at United States Military Academy at West Point; and John M., 15, a student at Manlius School, N. Y.

Schwarzer Bock Hotel Returned To Germans

The famous Schwarzer Bock Hotel in downtown Wiesbaden, Germany, has been returned to its German owners after serving for ten years as an Air Force operated VIP hotel.

Under Air Force management, the Schwarzer Bock contributed more than DM 370,000 in wages and local purchases during one quarter of 1955. The American Forces paid the owners of the hotel more than DM 300,000 per year in rent.

Replacing the Schwarzer Bock is a new General von Steuben Hotel which formally opened 15 Dec.

Col. Musgrove Becomes CONAC Assistant CofS

Assignment of Col. A. M. Musgrove, Jr., USAF, of Mitchel AFB, N. Y., as Assistant CofS for Installations is announced by Lt. Gen. Charles B. Stone, III, USAF, CONAC Commander.

Colonel Musgrove formerly served as Director of Installations. This position was upgraded following a recent Air Force decision to place the Installations function on the special staff. Similar position upgrading has occurred in several other major air commands.

CONAC's Installations, worth $100 million, operated under the Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel since 1949.

BUSY SCORPIONS

A new record of 1617.40 flying hours in one month for Northrop Scorpion F-89D aircraft has been established by the 3552d Flight Line Maintenance Squadron at Moody AFB, Ga.

In setting the new mark, the squadron, commanded by Capt. Martin L. Kammerer, USAF, surpassed the previous Air Training Command record of 1484 hours flown in a one month period.

The record was established, despite eight days of bad flying weather.

A Great Leader. General Alfred M. Gruenther passes from the active list of the U. S. Army next week, but he leaves behind him a great heritage for future generations of military men. He was many soldiers in one: he was an outstanding staff officer, he was a troop commander, he was a teacher, he displayed early ability in the employment of combined arms, his talents in working with and winning the support of all the varied nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have given formidable expression to the strength of the free world and added stature to the United States abroad—but above all he is a leader of men. His powers of accomplishment arise both from his clear, direct thinking and an almost uncanny ability to understand and appreciate others, both friend and foe.

General Gruenther leaves, too, sound advice on the future of our security planning. The people should recognize, he emphasized, that the free world military alliance represented in NATO is essential to our own defense. It is "foolish," he asserted, to assume that the current difficulties in the Soviet satellites presage a breaking up of the Communist empire. "We can count on their hostility and implacability for some time ahead," he warned. (The greatest danger, he said, lies in the possibility of a miscalculation on their part as to NATO's capacity to retaliate.)

The General, while he professed to have no direct knowledge of the reportedly forthcoming reduction in our division strength by 4,000, said he does not believe the introduction of new weapons justifies cuts in the Seventh Army in Germany. He pointed out that the weapons we are distributing to our allies have atomic capabilities but that that does not mean we are giving them atomic warheads. The types of weapons going to them under our new policy, he emphasized, can use warheads with conventional explosives. Whether or not atomic ammunition is supplied to them will be our decision should an emergency arise. On the other hand, he said, the Russians must realize that we are prepared for atomic retaliation to an act of aggression. We can not compete with the Communist world in manpower, so we must bridge the gap with nuclear power.

NATO must also be strengthened in airpower, he asserted. (The fact that General Gruenther, himself, is reported to have recommended the appointment of General Lauris Norstad, USAF, as his successor bespeaks his appreciation of the part airpower must play in NATO.) Particularly needed, he pointed out, is the building of a strong air defense command in Western Europe patterned along the lines of our growing Continental Air Defense Command in this country.

It is fitting that General Gruenther now becomes President of the American Red Cross, for none could have a greater appreciation than he of the part this great organization of mercy and disaster relief plays in expressing America's good will and understanding to all the peoples of the world.

Missile Progress. Now that the Secretary of Defense has handed down his decision on missile use and development, he should follow it promptly with a ruling as to the future scope of the Army's Ballistic Missile Agency and its excellent staff and facilities at Redstone Arsenal, Ala. As matters now stand, considerable progress has been made there toward the intermediate range missile Jupiter, embodying many of the principles developed for the Redstone missile. The Army, however, has been barred from the use of the intermediate range missile and while policy permits it to continue with its development the Defense Department has said that any such development must come from funds budgeted by either the Air Force or the Navy, both of which have been given clear roads in the operation of IRBMs.

Meanwhile, the skilled staff at Redstone, headed by the famous Dr. Wernher von Braun, has now the assurance only that it can continue this advanced work until the end of this fiscal year. Without funds from either the Air Force or the Navy, IRBM work there will cease after next June. Such an up-in-the-air state must be devastating to morale. We urge that there be no delay in reaching a decision on this most important policy.

Heroes of Peace. Air Force Chief of Staff General Nathan F. Twining has paid a well deserved tribute to the heroes of peacetime—the research pilots who probe the dangerous unknown reaches of speed and altitude. In his Wright Memorial Lecture to the Cadets of the

READERS' VIEWS

First With the Otter?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In reading your issue of 8 Dec. 1956, I note an article which I believe might be in error. I refer to page 14, column 4, titled, "Army Tests DH Otters on Benning Battlefield," which states in part—"this is the first time that a U-1 has taken part in a simulated combat situation of this nature and the men of the Fourth Battalion were the first ground combat unit to use the Otter."

The article does not give the date of the actual airlift, but I assume THE JOURNAL would not print news over a month old. On this assumption I submit the following factual information.

The 2d Bn, 18th Inf (Second to None in the Big Red One) has conducted two airlifts under simulated combat conditions utilizing the U-1A Otters of the 2d Aviation Company stationed at Ft. Riley, Kans. Both operations involved the movement of the combat elements of the 2d Bn and attachments to an objective deep in aggressor territory and an early link-up effected by a Type A mobile task force. The first of these operations occurred on 9 Nov. 1956 during an 18th Inf FTX and the second on 30 Nov. 1956 during exercise "Red Arrow" conducted by the 1st Inf. Div.

On the first airlift we transported the combat elements of the battalion, a platoon of 42 mortars, and attached medical personnel. For the second airlift we moved the same personnel plus ammunition boxes to simulate basic load of ammunition. For the second move we also utilized two H-21 Helicopters to transport the 106 recoilless rifles and necessary command vehicles.

In keeping with the traditions of the First Infantry Division and the Vanguard Regiment, I respectfully submit that if the airlift referred to in the article was accomplished after 9 Nov. 1956, "the men of the Fourth Battalion were the Second ground combat unit to use the Otter."

Too Much Paper Work

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Recently I have been reading articles in THE JOURNAL on the subject of officers leaving the services. Without question it is a sad state of affairs when we, (as taxpayers) send a young man to USMA for four years, one year to a civilian college, then after two or three years on the job, he resigns from the service.

General Herren, Hq. First Army, is to be commended for his straightforward action.

Our problem today is too much paper jamming the works. There is hardly a thing that we do or don't do that doesn't require some sort of a

U. S. Air Force Academy, General Twining pointed out that the courage of these men has "bought progress at the greatest price a man could pay."

The Air Force Chief of Staff mentioned particularly Capt. Milburn Apt, who lost his life in the X-2 supersonic rocket plane when he took it through the skies "several hundred miles an hour faster than any man has ever been known to fly." He recalled, also, the death of Capt. Glenn Edwards, killed testing the YB-49, Capt. Joe McConnell, who lost his life testing a Sabrejet in 1949, and Maj. Richard Bong, who died in a P-80 in 1945.

In fact, said General Twining, sacrifice for progress goes back to 1908 when Lt. Thomas Selfridge, crashing in a trial flight of the Wright flying machine, became the first Army officer to lose his life in aviation.

To the roll might be added, too, the manufacturers' test pilots who have given their lives in furthering the development of advanced aircraft for the military services.

The roster would be long and illustrious of the brave men whose sacrifices in peace time have made possible the weapons that defend us in war.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Infantry and Armored divisions of increased size and firepower were announced 21 Dec. by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, following approval of new tables of organization by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff. The war strength Infantry division will number between 17,000 and 18,000 and the Armored division approximately 15,000. For the present, the strength of divisions in the United States will be held to about 14,000 officers and men.

50 Years Ago—The Bureau of Navigation has under consideration the selection of two additional rear admirals to command divisions of the Atlantic Fleet, which is to be reorganized next month in accordance with the statement made by Read Admiral Converse in his annual report.

90 Years Ago—The modern appliances of steam and iron seem to have reduced the problem of a successful Navy chiefly to two classes of vessels. Of these, one is designed for the defense of our coasts and harbors from a foreign foe; the other for the protection of our ocean commerce and for preying upon that of the enemy. The former class embraces the iron-clads; the latter, high speed cruisers.

report to be submitted. This paper mill creates constant confusion that leads to one crash action to follow another. Most young men can't understand this, neither can the older, as a result they look elsewhere. I personally know several good reserve officers who were excellent officer material but the "continuity of confusion" sure made them decide, "this Army is not for me."

In other words, we must return the officer to duties of a leader, not burden him with the endless task of shuffling paper.

Uniform Expense?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In answer to the Lt. Colonel who complained about the expense of buying new blue and green uniforms (8 Dec. issue) I have a suggestion: It is obvious from the fact that he really wanted to wear Shade 33 that he has absolutely no pride in his appearance and, consequently, would have no objections to wearing on appropriate occasions his old uniforms sans insignia in lieu of more expensive civilian garb.

The money thus saved could be used toward the purchase of new blue and green uniforms to be worn on such occasions as the Army requires him to render a presentable appearance.

I. Authority And Purpose

A. Pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of Defense by the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, a Single Manager Service Assignment is hereby directed within the Department of Defense with authority, functions, responsibilities, and relationships as set forth herein.

B. The purposes and objectives of this assignment with respect to the military airlift mission are:

1. To ensure that the approved D-Day and wartime airlift requirements of the Department of Defense are met.
2. To provide that level of military airlift capability and organizational structure required for 1. above having due regard for the commercial airlift available.
3. To integrate into a single military agency of the Department of Defense all transport type aircraft engaged in scheduled point-to-point service or aircraft whose operations are susceptible of such scheduling, and such organizational and other transport aircraft as may be specifically designated by the Secretary of Defense.
4. To provide the most effective and economical airlift service to support the Armed Forces under all conditions consistent with references (a) and (b), military requirements, and the airlift service available to the Department of Defense from United States commercial air carriers.
5. To develop and guide the peacetime employment of airlift services in a manner that will enhance the wartime airlift capability, achieve greater flexibility and mobility of forces, and increase logistics effectiveness and economy.

II. Cancellation

This Directive cancels and supersedes reference (c). (1952 Directive on MATS)

III. Definitions

For the purpose of this Directive, the following definitions, in addition to those set forth in reference (b) which are relevant to this assignment, will apply:

A. Military Air Transport Service (MATS)—The Single Manager Operating Agency for Airlift Service (hereinafter referred to as the Agency).

B. Airlift Service—The performance or procurement of air transportation and services incident thereto required for the movement of persons, cargo, mail or other goods.

C. Administrative Airlift Service—The airlift service provided by specifically identifiable aircraft assigned to organizations or commands for internal administration.

D. Common User Airlift Service—The airlift service provided on a common basis for all Department of Defense agencies and, as authorized, for other agencies of the United States Government.

E. Attached Airlift Service—The airlift service provided to a military organization or command by an air transport unit of the Agency attached to that organization or command for operational control.

F. Organizational Airlift Service—The airlift service provided by those military aircraft not assigned to the Agency as specified in Section IV B herein.

G. Controlled Transport Aircraft—Transport aircraft designated by the Secretary of Defense for transfer or assignment to the Agency.

H. Air Transport Unit—An organizational unit which provides airlift service or support through the operation of controlled transport aircraft.

I. Military Airlift Capability—The airlift which the Agency is capable of providing for the air movement of passengers and cargo through the use of controlled transport aircraft.

IV. Compositions

A. The Agency will be composed of Controlled Transport Aircraft together with personnel, facilities, and equipment necessary to support the operation.

B. It is not intended to assign to the Agency transport aircraft in the following categories:

1. Those whose design or configuration limits their employment to specialized tasks.
2. Those required by the Military Departments for Administrative Airlift Service or Combat Readiness Training.
3. Those whose assignment outside of the Agency is required by overriding military considerations.

V. Delegation of Authorities And Responsibilities

A. The Secretary of the Air Force is hereby designated as the Single Manager for Airlift Service with authorities and responsibilities as assigned herein, subject to over-all guidance, policies and programs of the Secretary of Defense.

B. The Secretary of the Air Force will be responsible for utilization of all applicable portions of reference (b) which portions shall be considered to be policy pertinent to this assignment, except where such portions are specifically modified or amplified herein.

C. The Joint Chiefs of Staff will:

1. Review and evaluate requirements of the Military Departments for airlift service, training, and total airlift capacity and the Agency's capability to meet them.
2. Allocate the airlift capacity of the Agency as required to meet approved Joint Chiefs of Staff plans or upon request by the Agency or one of the Military Departments.
3. On their own initiative or on the request of the Secretary of Defense prepare recommendations regarding the designation of additional aircraft to be transferred to the Agency.
4. Review and approve appropriate plans developed by the Agency in support of war plans developed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and approved by the Secretary of Defense.

VI. Authorities and Responsibilities of the Single Manager

The Secretary of the Air Force as Single Manager will:

A. ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT

1. Establish and organize, as a major component of the United States Air Force, the Single Manager Operating Agency for Airlift Service which shall have no functions other than those assigned to it by this Directive.

2. Designate as Executive Director for Airlift Service a general officer nominated by the Chief of Staff, United States Air Force, subject to the approval of the Secretary of Defense. The Executive Director shall have no other duties but to direct the operations of the Military Air Transport Service, including such technical services as are set forth in Appendix A. The Executive Director shall be responsible to the Secretary of the Air Force through channels prescribed by that Secretary.

3. Organize the Administrative Committee in accordance with reference (b).

4. Organize, equip and attach air transport units necessary to meet military requirements as determined by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

B. AIRLIFT REQUIREMENTS

1. Prescribe, in coordination with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the procedures to be followed by the Military Departments in reporting their airlift service requirements.

C. BUDGETING AND FUNDING

1. In accordance with references (e), (f), and (g), take all necessary steps to establish airlift service on an industrial fund basis at an early date and in any case not later than January 1, 1958.

2. Budget and fund for the operation of the Agency in accordance with policies and procedures cooperatively developed with and concurred in by the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller).

D. PERSONNEL

1. Staff the agency headquarters and its subordinate elements with civilian employees who will be employees of the Department of the Air Force and military personnel from all Services, as appropriate, not necessarily with equal representation. Initially existing personnel, personnel spaces, funds, facilities and equipment will be adjusted among the Military Departments for responsibilities assigned to the Agency in order to meet the support requirements of the Single Manager created by this Directive. Such personnel adjustments will be effected in accordance with DOD Instruction 1404.4, dated April 19, 1955, and other applicable directives.

2. Positions within the Agency will be identified as military or civilian based on criteria established by the Secretary of Defense. Military staff positions subordinate to the Executive Director, at either the Agency Headquarters or its subordinate elements, will be alternated among the Military Services having representation in the Agency on a basis agreed to by the Single Manager and the Secretaries of the other Department or Departments concerned, with due consideration being given to the qualifications of the individuals concerned and career program needs of each Military Department.

E. GENERAL FUNCTIONS

1. Maintain and operate a military airlift service system within limits approved by the Secretary of Defense to:

- (a) maintain an adequate emergency readiness position,
- (b) carry out realistic training programs,
- (c) provide attached airlift service as required to all agencies of the Department of Defense, and
- (d) provide common user airlift service as required by all agencies of the Department of Defense and, as authorized, for other agencies of the United States Government

(1) between points in the United States and overseas areas,

(2) between and within overseas areas, and

(3) within the United States when necessary for reasons of security or to supplement commercial air carrier service based on determinations of the Military Traffic Management Agency.

2. Augment the airlift capacity of the Agency as required to meet requirements by the use of commercial airlift service in peacetime on a basis which will contribute to the sound economic development of an increased modern civil airlift capacity and enhance the ability of civil carriers to operate with maximum effectiveness in support of the military forces in time of war.

3. Procure by contract or otherwise all commercial airlift service between the United States and overseas areas and within and between overseas areas except individual travel and package air freight or express, and such other airlift service as may be directed by the Secretary of Defense.

4. Control the volume and rate of flow of traffic into the military airlift service system. Loading plans and loading and unloading of cargo and passengers shall be the responsibility of the Agency, utilizing the advice and participation of the shippers, as appropriate.

5. Develop an expanded mobilization base through the maximum feasible use of commercial airlift, maintenance, repair and overhaul, and terminal services, consistent with military requirements and the efficient employment of Department of Defense resources.

F. PLANNING AND PROGRAMMING

1. Prepare plans in support of approved Joint War Plans consistent with Joint Chiefs of Staff allocations approved by the Secretary of Defense for the employment and expansion of the Agency in time of war or national emergency.

2. Coordinate appropriate plans of the Agency with the Military Services and transmit such plans to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for approval.

3. Prepare and submit to the Secretary of Defense the annual operating plans and programs of the Agency in support of Department of Defense requirements, consistent with approved Joint Chiefs of Staff requirements for the employment of the Agency in time of peace.

VII. Implementation

A. It is the express intent of this Directive that implementation of the Single Manager Assignment for Airlift Service will obviate the requirement for any other activity within the Department of Defense to perform airlift service functions which duplicate the functions of the Agency. Accordingly, the Secretary of each Military Department will abolish any organizational unit or part thereof performing functions which duplicate those assigned to the Agency as soon as the Agency has assumed its responsibilities for such functions.

B. Terms of Reference, regulations and procedures, including plans showing the proposed organization, staffing and personnel requirements of the Agency, together with statements of any adjustments in personnel, personnel spaces, facilities, and equipment required to implement this Directive, will be developed and coordinated with the Military Departments by the Single Manager and transmitted to the Secretary of Defense for approval. The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Supply and Logistics) will coordinate the approval of such matters with other cognizant elements of the Office of the Secretary of Defense. Adjustments of funds will continue to be handled in the statutory manner through the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller).

1. Within 60 days after issuance of this Directive, the Single Manager will submit to the Secretary of Defense for approval recommended Terms of Reference governing:

(a) the relationship between the Military Departments and the Agency, and between the Agency and the Military Traffic Management Agency,

(b) the maintenance of military airlift service capability required for war,

(c) the operation of the Agency, together with the detailed plans showing the organization, functions, personnel requirements and staffing patterns for the Agency, including the schedule of military and civilian positions developed in accordance with Paragraph VI D 1 above, and

(d) the delineation of the responsibilities of each Military Department for providing support to the Agency.

2. Upon approval of the Terms of Reference by the Secretary of Defense, the Single Manager will activate the Agency.

3. The Secretaries of the Navy and the Air Force will take action to transfer transport aircraft to the Agency as indicated in Appendix B and assign necessary support and operating personnel.

4. The Secretary of Defense will review at least annually the assignment of Department of Defense transport aircraft to determine the desirability of designating additional aircraft for transfer to the Agency.

VIII. Effective Date

This Directive is effective upon issuance.
C. E. WILSON
SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

APPENDIX A

TECHNICAL SERVICES (NON-AIRLIFT) OF THE DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE WHICH MAY BE ASSIGNED UNDER THE CONTROL OF THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, SINGLE MANAGER OPERATING AGENCY FOR AIRLIFT SERVICE

The operations of the following Technical Services (non-airlift) of the Department of the Air Force may be assigned to the Agency at the discretion of the Single Manager for administrative convenience; being non-airlift functions, they are not subject to industrial funding.

1. Air Photographic and Charting Service
2. Air Rescue Service
3. Airways and Air Communications Service
4. Air Weather Service
5. Flight Service

APPENDIX B

TRANSPORT AIRCRAFT TO BE TRANSFERRED BY THE SECRETARIES OF THE NAVY AND THE AIR FORCE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE SINGLE MANAGER AGENCY FOR AIRLIFT SERVICE

1. The following aircraft will be transferred to the Department of Defense Single Manager Agency for Airlift Service upon its activation:

a. All transport aircraft assigned to the existing Military Air Transport Service including those assigned to the 125th Air Transport Group (Special Missions) and the 1706th Air Transport Group (Aeromedical Evacuation).

b. All transport aircraft of the Naval components of the Military Air Transport Service and all four engine transport aircraft of the Fleet Logistic Air Wings with the exception of twenty which may be retained for assignment to the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets, ten which may be retained for administrative airlift service, and all water based transport aircraft.

c. All heavy transport aircraft of the Troop Carrier elements of the Tactical Air Command.

2. The actual number of transport aircraft transferred will be based on the inventory as of July 1, 1956, adjusted to reflect increases resulting from procurement or transfers and decreases resulting from attrition as of the date of transfer.

3. Reimbursement to the Military Air Transport Service for Special Air Missions, Air Evacuation, and troop carrier operations will be from the Service having the airlift mission responsibility.

THE BACHELOR OFFICER'S FLIGHT will be recognized in legislation now being whipped into final shape at the Pentagon. The 1957 try at winning legislative approval for reduced rentals for the thousands of military families who must occupy substandard government quarters will include a provision authorizing lower rentals for second-rate BOQ facilities, if the Defense Department listens to arguments presented by the Services. Even if the DoD should reject this proposal, there seems little doubt that some members of Congress will demand equitable treatment for thousands of bachelor officers who must forfeit their entire rental allowance for quarters that are substandard. THE REASON that the Pentagon omitted this feature from the 1956 substandard quarters bill was the fear that its cost would jeopardize the family welfare legislation.

PRESSURE WILL MOUNT from the civilian aircraft industry for greater use of commercial planes to haul routine military traffic. The Air Transport Association, in the forefront of this campaign, emphasizes that MATS must be "strong and vigorous", equipped with modern jet transports and ready for D-Day action. But President Stuart G. Tipton of the ATA contends that more commercial planes should be employed by the military. THE NEW MATS (Page 11) is charged with the task of surveying the possibility of increasing the military's use of civilian aircraft; the ATA will make a strong case in the development of this study.

THE FIRST WORD to reach TAC's 18th Air Force at Donaldson AFB, S. C., about the transfer of three heavy transport wings to MATS didn't come from the Pentagon. The key TAC unit, known as the top combat airlift outfit in the world, learned about the shift in queries from local reporters reading the news ticker. THE IMPACT was such that one newspaper wired Washington to the effect that "perhaps the story is in error; they haven't heard about it at the 18th AF." It was obvious that the Pentagon had failed to get the word to the troops.

THE MOVIE "WAR AND PEACE" has created a logistics problem for the Armed Forces. The film runs 3 hours and 28 minutes, which is twice the length of an average feature. A staff paper was worked up by the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Exchange Service on how to compensate enlisted personnel employed in military theaters on a per-performance basis. THE ANSWER: pay them for two performances each time "War and Peace" is shown.

THE ASSN. OF THE U. S. ARMY is stepping up its campaign to build membership strength throughout the Nation. A Pikes Peak chapter is being organized in Colorado under chairmanship of Brig. Gen. Joseph B. Crawford, USA, newly named Assistant Commander of the 9th Infantry Division, who had been on duty at the Pentagon. AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT is expected shortly of the appointment of Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, USA, now Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, to be Executive Vice President of the Association following his retirement from the Army, probably next month. Speculation continues that General Weible's Assistant Deputy CofS, Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, USA, will be promoted to lieutenant general and made Deputy CofS.

HAZARDOUS NOISES are giving the Government a budget earache. It's estimated that compensation for hearing loss and diseases of the ear—many of the cases caused by jet engine noises—costs the Treasury about $54 million per year.

A SPECIAL CARETAKER STAFF of 40 soldiers has been organized at Ft. Carson, Colo., to take care of 301 mules and 21 horses "retired" with the deactivation of the 4th FA Bn. (Pack) and the 35th QM Pack Co. (During WWII, the Army had 14 pack artillery battalions and 8 quartermaster pack troops). The bemused animals lazily will follow hurry-up activities of the new-fangled 4th Airphibious Field Artillery Firing Unit, equipped with howitzers, rocket launchers and helicopters, being organized at Ft. Sill, Okla. to replace the doughty pack outfits. RETIREMENT CEREMONIES for the mules and horses were highlighted by special tributes to 19-year-old Hambone, a veteran of 14 years Army service, and world renowned for participation in jumping shows. Hambone's fame now is assured of martial immortality; he will be the "Army's last jackass."

GUIDED MISSILE SPENDING in the Air Force, which accounted for 10 per cent of procurement money in 1954, will be about 35 per cent in the '58 budget and go to 50 per cent in 1961. As a consequence, aircraft procurement will fall. Since much of the missile production will be accomplished in new plant facilities, the problem will grow as to what to do with vacated aircraft production space.

THE ARMY INFORMATION PROGRAM has been packaged effectively into a long-range objectives chart, which shows the areas that are to be emphasized and the goals to be achieved. The document (Circular 11-1) is certain to be of great help to Commanders and PubInfo officers. JUST RELEASED at the Pentagon, the Circular, like much else in the broad field of public information, has been overtaken by events. It calls for action to emphasize "the Army's unique ability to employ the family of surface-to-surface missiles including the important long-range ballistic and guided missiles and to support them logistically within the current organization and training plan." WELL STATED, but obsolete with SecDef Wilson's Roles and Missions statement of late November telling the Army not to plan for use of missiles beyond 200 miles. Top listed PubInfo objective is to get across "the Army's unique capacity for the rapid application of force in degrees commensurate with the varying requirements."

MANY SERVICE ATHLETIC TEAMS are going through a "de-emphasis" program—the aim being to stress increased participation with less stress on post and base teams. At Ft. Benning, Ga., a decision has just been made to restrict sports competitions to regimental level. THE SELECT GROUP of Army NCO's which recently was asked to advise the Cordiner Committee recommended curtailment of so-called "all star" teams in favor of giving more soldiers a chance to play in competitive sports. WHATEVER THE OVERALL TREND towards "intermural" programs, you can still count on the fact that, one way or another, a number of Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps installations somehow will come up with crack teams and interesting gentlemen agreements, such as reflected in the fact that each year Bolling AFB, in Washington, D. C., has a top-flight football team, while nearby Andrews AFB comes up with an outstanding basketball unit.

HABERDASHERY PROBLEMS are causing increasing delays in the movement of Army recruits through reception centers. Regulations say that the soldiers cannot be shipped out until completely outfitted with clothing of proper size and cut. With the switch to the Army Green, stocks of O.D. garb are being depleted; consequently, increased alterations are necessary.

SEC'Y BRUCKER HAILS DIX REFUGEE AID

Secretary Wilber M. Brucker has saluted soldiers at Ft. Dix, N. J., for contributing $10,000 to the relief of Hungarian refugees—the largest single donation reported by Red Cross officials in Burlington County, N. J.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Earl C. Bergquist, USA, Commanding General, Secretary Brucker wrote:

"What has been done at Fort Dix is but another example of the 'big heart' of the United States Army. All too often actions such as this pass unnoticed. They do not make news. They are taken for granted. Day in and day out, our people at Fort Dix,—like the men and women stationed at posts all over the world—work along selflessly at their assigned tasks in the service of their country. There is no doubt that they are faced with the same problems which confront families everywhere. Yet, out of the goodness of their hearts, they have seen fit to respond unstintingly to the needs of a brave, pathetic group, whose plight they felt overshadowed any problems of their own.

"Words cannot tell you how much this act moves me. It exemplifies the true spirit of Christmas. I would appreciate your passing on this message to each and every member of your command. May all of you and your families enjoy the full blessings of this holy season."

NEW LINK TO ALASKA OPENED

The Army Signal Corps and the Bell Telephone System opened to public service on 11 Dec. a new communications link between the U. S. and Alaska. It is an underwater telephone cable system stretching 1,250 miles from Port Angeles, Wash., to Skagway, Alaska.

Assistant Secretary of Interior Hatfield Chilson and Governor B. Frank Heintzleman of Alaska made the first call over the new system. Mr. Chilson spoke from Washington and Mr. Heintzleman from Juneau.

The inaugural call was made over a 4,600 mile telephone network that linked Washington to Juneau and included Seattle, Ketchikan, Anchorage and Fairbanks. At each location, government, military and industry officials participated in the ceremonies.

In addition to Mr. Chilson, the Washington group included Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker; George McConaughy, Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission; E. L. Bartlett, Congressional Delegate for Alaska; Maj. Gen. W. Preston Corderman, USA, Acting Chief Signal Officer; RADM. J. N. Wenger, USN, of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and William G. Thompson, Assistant Vice President of American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The cable system represents two major projects—one provided by the Long Lines Department of A. T. & T.; the other by the Alaska Communication System, which is operated by the Signal Corps.

The A. T. & T. cable system extends from Port Angeles to Ketchikan, Alaska, a distance of about 900 miles. Twin cables, containing built-in amplifiers, lie in the ocean depths off the coast between the two points. These cables were placed by the cableship Albert J. Myer between early June and late August. They are similar in design and construction to the transatlantic telephone cable system—the first such system to cross an ocean—which went into service in September.

The system took over two years to build. It can carry 36 conversations at one time and will be used to supplement the radiotelephone and land line facilities that have been operating between the States and Alaska since 1937.

The new cable system will more than double the capacity of the radio and land line circuits and will perform with the clarity and reliability of the best States-side telephone line.

M/G Bean to Command Finance Center & Post

Maj. Gen. Emmett J. Bean, USA, will assume command of Ft. Benjamin Harrison on 1 Jan.

He will be responsible to Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, Commanding General, Fifth Army, for operation of the installation, whose primary mission is providing logistical support for the Finance Center, USA, The Adjutant General's School, Finance School, U. S. Army and the Indiana Military District.

General Bean, who has been Commanding General of the Finance Center since the establishment of its headquarters in 1952, will continue to be responsible to Maj. Gen. Harry W. Grandall, Chief of Finance, USA, for centralized, Army-wide finance, accounting and auditing operations. The consolidation of command is a step permitting consolidation of Post Headquarters and Finance Center Headquarters to avoid duplication of effort and save money in support and administrative functions.

Continuing as Deputy Commander to General Bean will be Col. John J. Madigan, jr., present Finance Center Deputy. Post activities will be under the direction of Col. Robert G. Smith, jr., serving as Deputy for Post Operations. The present Finance Center Deputy for Operations, Col. E. L. Dlugensky, will continue in that assignment. Col. James A. Miller, presently post executive officer, will serve as Director of Personnel and Administration. Executive officer in the new command structure will be Col. Charles P. Law of the Finance Center.

AF Lexicographer Wins Top Award

The Air Force has awarded Dr. Woodford A. Heflin, Chief, Documentary Research Division of Air University's Research Studies Institute, the Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service, highest Air Force civilian honor award.

Lt. Gen. Dean C. Strother, USAF, Commander, Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., made the presentation 11 Dec. in recognition of Dr. Heflin's efforts in developing and compiling the first Air Force Dictionary.

Production of the dictionary required more than five years research, reading and analyses.

The citation accompanying the Air Force award to Dr. Heflin was read by Col. Curtis Sluman, USAF, Director, Research Studies Institute.

"In recognition of his exceptional performance at the Air University Research Studies Institute from September 1950 through June 1956 as editor of the USAF Dictionary. In developing and compiling the first United States Air Force Dictionary, Dr. Heflin exhibited outstanding professional competence, organizing ability, sound planning, sustained effort, and unsparring energy and zeal. His accomplishment has brought greater insight into the nature of the USAF mission by clarification of problems related to the use of the English language."

INVESTMENT
 facts straight

The new booklet, "Investment Facts," should be "must" reading for servicemen and women planning their financial futures now. It's informative, timely, easy to read—and among its features is a listing of stocks that have paid cash dividends every three months for 20 years or longer.

"Investment Facts" is recommended by the Armed Forces Department of Harris, Upham & Co., the nationwide brokerage firm which has served investors for more than 60 years. And, as part of its specialized investment service, Harris, Upham offers copies of this booklet free to military personnel.

So, to get the facts on investing—and to get them straight—simply fill out and mail the attached coupon. There's no obligation, of course.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

PHILADELPHIA—Chairmen of various committees of the Army Signal Supply Agency Officers' Wives Club are seen with some of the dolls and stuffed animals the Club will distribute to hospitals this month. They are (left to right) Mesdames Henry H. Sablitz, welfare co-chairman; Jack Nahas, chairman of the organization; William D. Hamlin, honorary chairman; Mynard Raney, program chairman; and (seated right) Everts Buchanan, welfare co-chairman.

SUPPER guests of Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Charles Wilson on 18 December were members of the Secretary's office staff and crew members of his plane, "Dew Drop 2d", their wives and husbands.

Following cocktails in the Secretary's office at the Pentagon, the guests dined in the big Pentagon conference room to music by a small group from the Army Band.

The Wilsons presented Christmas gifts to all of their guests. The gathering included the Secretary's two military assistants, Col. Carey Randall and Lt. Col. C. J. George, and their wives; Mr. Wilson's secretary, Vera Abbott, and her husband Gene; Col. Marshall E. Groover, USAF; special assistant Eugene Livesay and Mrs. Livesay; Alice Blake and her husband Raymond; M/Sgt and Mrs. Robert Overturf; M/Sgt and Mrs. Raymond Harris; Sp2 Isabel Olsen; M/Sgt Esther MacKay; Sgt. Norma Hallihan; M/Sgt Clyde Hester; T/Sgt and Mrs. W. J. Chappell; M/Sgt and Mrs. William Anderson; M/Sgt and Mrs. Deward Norman.

Also Maj. and Mrs. Ben Hansen; Maj. and Mrs. Leland Strauch; Mrs. Sofet, wife of one of the Dew Drop pilots; M/Sgt and Mrs. Francisco Salveron and T/Sgt and Mrs. Clarence L. King.

Inaugural Festivities—

Service families are well represented in the numerous committees which have been appointed to supervise the three-day inaugural festivities for President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Neill Phillips, wife of RAdm. Phillips, USN-Ret., has been appointed one of the Vice Chairmen of the Official Hostesses and Hospitality Committee, and she also will serve as an Assistant Chairman of the Embassies, Open House and Tours Sub-committee of this group.

Mrs. Arthur W. Radford, wife of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will serve as Chairman of the Military Forces Liaison Committee of the Hostesses and Hospitality Committee, and Mrs. Henry J. Ziegemeier, widow of RAdm. Ziegemeier, has been named one of the Official Inauguration Hostesses.

Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten, USA, Commanding General of the Military District of Washington, will serve on the Advisory Committee for the Committee on Reception of Governors and Special Distinguished Guests, as will RAdm. Howard A. Yeager, USN, Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel.

Capt. Charles W. Moses, USN, will chair the sub-committee on Military Aides and Mrs. Phillips is chairman of Historian Sub-committee for the Governors' Reception.

Admiral Arthur Radford, USN, Chairman of the JCS, will be Grand Marshal of the Parade.

Armor Officers Celebrate—

Army officers on 12 December celebrated the 180th Anniversary of Armor. As a continuation of the Cavalry by Act of Congress, Armor inherited the mission, honors and tradition of its predecessor.

At Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va., over 200 officers and their ladies from the Washington Chapter of the Armor Association gathered for a cocktail-buffet dinner.

Adding lustre to the gathering the color guard of the famed 2d Armored Cavalry Regiment, stationed at Ft. Meade, presented the regimental colors. The enlisted men resplendent in their Dragoon uniforms representatives of those worn by the regiment when it was formed in 1836, put on an impressive ceremony.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Guy V. Henry, former Chief of Cavalry, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank H. Britton, Armor Branch, CMD, were in the receiving line to welcome the guests.

Army-Navy-Air Force Cotillion—

Members of the Army-Navy-Air Force Cotillion will have their Christmas ball, at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer, Va., on Thursday evening, 27 Dec., when many former members, in Washington for the holidays, will be guests.

The guests of honor will be Maj. Gen. (USAF) and Mrs. Richard C. Lindsay, who, with members of the Cotillion committee, will be in the receiving line at 8:30 p. m. Junior hosts and hostesses for the dance will include, Joan Ann Neal, Frances Hillyard, Dale Bilbo, Heather Hanley, Scott Edson, William Rasco, Dennis Flynn and Eric Nelson.

When the members and guests have passed down the receiving line, the junior hosts and hostesses will lead the grand march. The Mell-O-Tones will provide the music for the occasion, and light refreshments will be served later in the evening.

Mrs. Wilson Honor Guest—

The U. S. European Command Officers Wives Club in Paris, France, had Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, wife of the Secretary of Defense, as guest of honor for their Christmas luncheon last week. She shared the receiving line with Mrs. Lauris Norstad and Mrs. George H. Decker, both Honorary Presidents of the Club, and Mrs. W. J. Ely, President of the Club.

An art display was presented by EU-COM wives who have been studying in art classes conducted by Mrs. Rosamond Gaydash, well known for her work in both Paris and Washington, D. C.

A mixed group chorus of 89 children from the Garches dependent school entertained to the accompaniment of Chris Nance, a fellow student at the school.

Official hostesses for the party were: Mrs. W. H. S. Wright, Mrs. C. N. Hunter, Mrs. H. C. Schwaner, jr., Mrs. R. D. Halpin, Mrs. L. S. Lawrence, Mrs. J. D. Hickey, Mrs. B. R. Rudolph, Mrs. L. E. Furtwangler, and Mrs. G. T. Johnston.

OTIG Ladies' Christmas Coffee—

The OTIG Wives Club will share a portion of its Christmas with needy Service families, when its members gather at Ft. Myer, Va., on 20 Dec., at 11 a. m., with baskets of canned goods and money contributions. Mrs. Fred L. Eaker is the welfare chairman and will supervise the collection and distribution of the baskets. Perishable items, including turkey and "fixins," will be purchased and added to the canned articles.

Pouring at the coffee table will be Mrs. David A. D. Ogden, wife of The Inspector General, Mrs. Eugene W. Ridings, wife of the Deputy TIG, Mrs. William P. Grace, jr., and Mrs. Russell O. Utke. Hostesses will be Mesdames Henry L. Hille, jr., Harry M. Kemp and Lawrence A. Laliberte.

Christmas carols and door prizes will also highlight the occasion.

that it is a "family" affair. The Quartermaster General and Mrs. Kester L. Hastings welcomed the officers and their ladies at the door, during the cocktail hour, assisted by Mrs. Shelby Gillette, president of the Women's Club, and Colonel Gillette. Col. and Mrs. Dale Etka were in charge of arrangements and were assisted by Col. and Mesdames Frank Bednarek, William Barefield, Lt. Col. and Mesdames Will Tate, Howard James, Maj. and Mesdames Eldridge Cox, C. G. Baughman and Robert Ward.

Among the several Quartermaster officers and their wives, who came to Washington for the event were Col. and Mrs. E. M. Burns from Ft. Lee, Va., and Col. and Mrs. Hugh Allen from the Richmond Quartermaster Depot.

MRS. THOMAS W. DUNN (right), wife of Ft. Chaffee's commanding general and honorary member of the Chaffee Nursery Council, snips the ribbon officially opening the Post Nursery. Watching is the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Dunn, and Mrs. F. G. Stritzinger, IV, also an honorary Council member. The Nursery, a project of the Chaffee Officers' Wives Club and the NCO Wives Club, is open each day of the week except Mondays.

Son Presents Portrait Of Famous Dad To USMC

Maj. Gen. Littleton W. T. Waller, jr., USMC-Ret., has presented a portrait of his father, the late Maj. Gen. Littleton W. T. Waller, sr., to the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.

The portrait hangs in the Commissioned Officers' Mess in Waller Hall named in honor of General Waller senior.

Among the officers present at the informal ceremony were Generals T. Holcomb, USMC-Ret., and Lemuel C. Shepherd, USMC-Ret., (17th and 20th Commandants of the Marine Corps), Lt. Gen. Merrill M. Twining, USMC, Commandant, Marine Corps Schools, General Allen H. Turnage, USMC-Ret., Lt. Gen. Julian Smith, USMC-Ret., Maj. Gen. Henry R. In third place was the team of DICK RIPLE and COL. R. W. RIPLE, who shot 167. . . .

QM Women's Club Has Dinner Dance—

Members of the Quartermaster Women's Club of Washington entertained with their husbands at a holiday dinner dance, on 15 Dec., at the Ft. McNair Officers' Club. Ball gowns and dress blue uniforms added extra glitter to the gay Christmas decorations effectively created by Club members. The focal point of interest centered on a huge mistletoe ball suspended from the center of the ballroom ceiling, under which dinner tables with festive red cloths were bedecked with pine, holly, colored balls and snow glitter.

People Of Service Spread Holiday Cheer, Aid Refugees

WEURZBURG, GERMANY — More than 700 orphans from six Weurzburg orphanages here were the guests of military and civilian police of Weurzburg at the largest Christmas party for orphans in Bavaria.

After the children had filled up on cake, cookies and punch, served by uniformed MPs and city police, Saint Nicholas entered to the accompaniment of the 10th Div. Band. He greeted the children and presented each with a package of goodies prepared by the police.

In addition to the orphans and a few other needy children, military dignitaries attending the party included Maj. Gen. Rinaldo Van Brunt, NACOM CG; Maj. Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, 10th Div. CG; Col. I. A. Wiles, 10th Fld. Hosp. CO; and Lt. Col. Andrew M. Dunn, Weurzburg Sub-Area CO. Lt. Col. Edward T. Devlin, who became 10th Div. provost marshal three days ago, and Maj. John H. Dennin, Weurzburg Sub-Area PM, were ranking representatives of the military police units.

ASCHAFFENBURG, GERMANY — Youngsters in the American dependent school here have turned over 900 toys of their own for delivery to Hungarian refugee children in Vienna. Although the toys originally had been collected for their own Christmas party, the children responded promptly when told of the plight of the needy Hungarian children. The toys, ranging from international games to dolls and watches, were escorted to the Austrian capital by Maj. James Bryant, USA, Executive Officer, 40th Field Artillery Battalion.

McCONNELL AFB, KAN. — McConnell Air Force Base played host to approximately 375 Institute of Logopedics children 15 Dec. at the annual Logopedics Kids' Christmas Party.

Military and civil service persons contributed heavily to a fund raising campaign which sponsors the kids' party and a needy family basket program. Nearly $3,000 was donated by air base personnel to finance the two programs. The drive for these funds was under the direction of Maj. Gail O. Plush.

FT. MASON, CALIF. — Members of the Women's Club have turned over more than 400 homemade Christmas glo-candles for sale to finance community services of the club during the coming year. The candles, which sell for 35 cents to $1, were molded from everyday kitchen items . . . milk cartons, frozen juice cans, muffin cups, etc., and were decorated with Christmas-theme patterns.

MAXWELL AFB, ALA. — Maxwell and Gunter Air Force Base officers, airmen and civilians donated $24,000 to the Montgomery United Appeal Campaign recently concluded.

Col. Mills S. Savage, Commander of the 3800th Air Base Wing, presented a check for that amount recently to W. B. "Sonny" Patterson, chairman of the United Appeal Campaign.

Maxwell and Gunter Community Welfare solicitations are carried on traditionally at the same time as the United Appeal. The funds raised on Maxwell and Gunter, in excess of the $24,000 turned over to the United Appeal, will be used for welfare activities on the two bases. These funds will support the youth activities on Maxwell and Gunter and all other agencies authorized by the Department of Defense such as the Crusade for Freedom, Korean Relief, Chaplain's Fund and a program recently approved by the President, the American Red Cross for relief in Hungary.

The largest single contribution from any of the units, $16,000, came from the Air Command and Staff College.

EVREUX-FAUVILLE AB, FRANCE — Holiday plans for the two orphanages sponsored by the Officers' Wives' Club reached a peak at the December luncheon meeting when members voted to turn over to the welfare project a share of the proceeds made at Bingo. This amount, augmented by the profit from the raffle of a doll with a wardrobe fashioned by club member Mrs. John E. Van Duyn, makes a total of $245 to be allocated for shoes, blankets, fuel or other necessities.

Honorary president of the club is Mrs. Clyde Box, wife of the 322d Air Division Commander; honorary vice-president is Mrs. Robert D. Forman, wife of the Base Commander; acting president is Mrs. James A. Evans, jr. The welfare chairman is Mrs. Thos. E. Shaffmaster.

FT. MEADE, MD. — The Ft. Meade Girl Scout and Brownie Troops are busy collecting Christmas gifts for the Hungarian refugee children at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

Normally, gifts are exchanged among themselves, but this year the girls voted to earmark the presents for the Hungarians so that the newcomers can better enjoy an American Christmas.

FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX. — Patients hospitalized at Brooke Army Medical Center will give Christmas presents to children outpatients in the heart clinic.

Most of the presents were handmade by bed-ridden patients, and include model planes, stuffed toys, mittens, dolls and even costume jewelry. One patient made mobiles for hanging above the cribs of infants.

The children who will receive the presents range in age from one month to 13 years. The gift project was sponsored by the American Red Cross recreation workers at the hospital.

L. G. HANSCOM FIELD, MASS. — The Air Force Cambridge Research Center's annual United Fund Drive, which was completed in mid-November, resulted in a total of more than $10,000 raised for listed charitable organizations.

CHERRY POINT, N. C. — Aviation Marines at this air station donated $1,000 to buy medicine and food for Hungarian refugees and nationals in that stricken country. A check drawn on the proceeds of a recent United Fund Drive held here was handed Red Cross Field Director George G. Peterson by Brig. Gen. E. A. Montgomery, air station commanding general.

FT. LEE, VA. — Checks totaling $16,238.87 were handed over to representatives of six charitable organizations by Col. S. F. Silver, acting for Maj. Gen. Ira K. Evans, commanding general of QMTC and Fort Lee. The money was part of the $40,482.40 raised in Fort Lee's Combined Charities Fund drive.

FT. RILEY, KAN. — Ft. Riley's military and civilian population contributed a total of $380 to the Hungarian Refugee Fund during the drive which was concluded 13 Dec., it was announced by Maj. Richard J. Lilley, chairman of the drive.

The total represents half the quota set for Geary County by President Eisenhower. The money will be turned over to the Geary County chapter of the American Red Cross.

HEIDELBERG, GERMANY . . . Personnel of the U. S. Army, Europe, has contributed approximately $188,000 in the annual Army Emergency Relief Society Joint Fund Drive. Several areas haven't been heard from yet, and officials expect to total ultimately to top $200,000. The official campaign ran from 31 Aug. to 1 Oct., but was extended when some units on field training were unable to contribute.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO . . . Headquarters Company, Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, has donated $236 to Letterman Army Hospital to finance the visit of a Letterman patient's mother or wife to his bedside over Christmas.

The money was presented to Col. Paul S. Fancher, Letterman commander, by M/Sgt. John W. Wooten, Headquarters Company Sixth Army's first sergeant.

Letterman officials will select the patient to be visited on the basis of the inability of the patient to travel, the financial inability of the patient's mother or wife to finance the visit herself, and the benefit that will accrue to the patient from such a visit.

Since the beginning of the voluntary project on the part of the men of Headquarters Company in 1952, they have donated a total of $1,343 to Letterman for this purpose.

FT. HOOD, TEX. — The Ft. Hood Officers Wives Club has donated thousands of hours and over $15,000 for charitable work during the past five years.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Isaac E. Whisnant, club president, these business women, numbering nearly 400, are managing a large scale financial effort based on Post beautification, hospital welfare, soldier recreation, and making Ft. Hood a better place to live.

The recent Carnival sponsored by the club, the Thrift Shop, Style Shows, dues, and private donations have been worth $10,000 of air-conditioning at the Station Hospital including units in the children's and women's surgical and medical wards. They have been worth two parties a month for hospitalized soldiers and nursery service for mothers assisting as Grey Ladies and Staff Aides at the hospital, and countless newly-planted trees and shrubbery provided by the club that decorate the Post.

Future plans of the group include providing $300 for more plants and shrubbery on the Post, more hospital air-conditioning, and possibly drawing nationally known entertainers to the area such as The Don Cosack Chorus and Dancers and the Harlem Globe Trotters.

In addition to their funding activities, such as the Thrift Shop and Style Shows, the Officers Wives Club conducts classes in Bridge, Spanish, sewing, and Ceramics, and has organized an exercise group, a music and choral group, a book club, and an international group which is made up of wives born outside the United States.

members and their husbands gathered on the evening of 15 Dec. at the Arsenal Recreation Hall for their annual Christmas dinner. Approximately 150 guests attended.

Preceding dinner, a musical program of Christmas carols was provided by a children's chorus under the direction of Maj. William H. Rhoads, jr., with Miss Judy Laming as accompanist. Members of the choral group included Ricky Anderson, Sandy Anderson, Joey Bash, Martha Borders, Barbara Bertrand, Debby Cox, Mary Jo Cullen, Patricia Cullen, Jimmy Dishman, Johnny Dishman, Becky Doyle, Whit Gilchrist, Barry Judd, Berry Kaufman, Diane Kilmer, Susan Klinker, Joyce Laming, Pamela Parnelle, Billy Rhoads, Julie Rhoads, Mary Frances Sirianne, Raymond Sirianne, Joan Stark, Lee Stark, Alex Worthing and Libby Worthing.

Dinner was served from tables appointed with silvered, ornamented boughs in snow covered containers. Officers of the Club were hostesses at each table. Following the dinner, Mrs. Percy Laming, president, welcomed members and guests. Maj. Gen. Robert G. Butler, on behalf of the husbands, thanked the ladies for the fine dinner and entertainment.

Mrs. Walter Rogers, vice president and program chairman, introduced the members of the Arsenal Teen-Age Club who presented a comedy, "Bingo Blues." Mrs. William Doyle wrote the amusing play and directed it. Members of the cast were as follows: Karen Dean, John Schroder, Chane Howard, Jeanne Longley, Cappy Dean, Joe Longley, Leigh Worthing, Margaret Rogers, Robert Stephens, Ginger Dishman, Jim Bash, Dick Hegeman, Larry Bramlette, and John Stokes. The stage managers were Linda Mack, Barbara Dishman, and Connie Stokes.

General chairman of the dinner was Mrs. Addison Dishman, who was assisted by Mesdames Harlan Judd, William Doyle, William Harber, Earl Marsha, Anabel Mack, Samuel Bostick, Richard Wade, Leonard Jensen, and James B. Evans.

Atlanta Gen. Depot Club Ends Busy Year Dressing Dolls For Christmas Giving

ATLANTA GENERAL DEPOT, GA. — Taking the spotlight at the last 1956 meeting of the Atlanta General Depot Women's Club was a display of 40 dolls dressed by club members for Salvation Army Christmas giving.

Each doll reflected the personal ingenuity of her particular dressmaker. Some were in traditional baby outfits. Some were eye-catching realistic copies of latest Dior fashions. Many were topped off with hand-knit tamers or hats, some to match their tiny sweaters or finger-tip coats. There was at least one bride, in all her snow-white glory.

Other club Christmas projects are a donation to the Christmas welfare fund of nearby Forest Park and financial assistance to an ill Depot employee.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Arthur H. Nelson, president, and Mrs. Joseph V. Rogers, welfare chairman, the club has been active during the year in many other community welfare projects.

Among these have been participation in the Depot Red Cross blood program. Club members volunteer their services when the Bloodmobile visits the post.

During the year the AGD Women's Club has also given financial assistance to a number of families in nearby towns who lost their homes and possessions in fires. In addition, many individual club members donated furnishings and clothing to these fire victims.

Much of the club's income is derived from its operation of the post Thrift Shop. The small sum charged owners of articles left for sale goes into the treasury for use in the club's welfare activities.

Obituaries

Brig. Gen. John D. Kilgore, USA

The body of Brig. Gen. John D. Kilgore, USA, Chief of Staff of the Military Advisory Group in Korea, who died at the Tokyo Army Hospital, Japan, on 11 Dec., of a ruptured stomach ulcer, was brought back to Washington, D. C. for burial at Arlington National Cemetery. He was 53 years old.

A graduate of the U.S. Military Academy's Class of 1927, General Kilgore resigned his Regular Army commission two years later and went to work for the New York World as a mechanical superintendent. Returning to active duty in 1933, however, General Kilgore served with the CCC. In WW II, General Kilgore was Secretary of the General Staff in the European Theater of Operations before the Normandy Invasion in which he participated, later serving as Chief of Staff of the 100th Infantry Division. General Kilgore was about to return to the United States, after 16 months in Korea, to assume a new post.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elfrida Kilgore of 1310 Tracy Pl., Falls Church, Va.; and four daughters, Kathleen, 18, Virginia, 17, Susanne, 3, and Dianne Kilgore, eight months old.

Capt. John Grady, USN-Ret.

Capt. John Grady, USN-Ret., 83-year-old Congressional Medal of Honor winner, died at St. Petersburg, Fla., on 9 December.

At the age of 25, Captain Grady first saw action under Admiral George Dewey at Manila in the Spanish-American War, and he served in China during the Boxer Rebellion. For his participation in the Battle of Vera Cruz, during the Mexican Revolution in 1914, Captain Grady was awarded the Medal of Honor. In WWI, he was Captain of the USS Wilhelmina, which was the first ship to bring the wounded back from France.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. May F. Grady; and two sons, Mr. John D. Grady of New York City, and Mr. Francis J. Grady of Montreal, Canada.

Col. Philip Robert Hawes, USAF

Burial services were held on 12 Oct., at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., for Col. Philip Robert Hawes, USAF, who was killed in an air crash, near Westover, Ala., on 1 Oct. He was 43 years old.

A native of Los Angeles, Colonel Hawes entered military service in 1933, as an enlisted man at Ft. Winfield Scott, Presidio of San Francisco, where he later received an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy. He was graduated with the Class of 1938 and assigned to Randolph Field, Tex., where he completed his flying training. After a distinguished career in the Air Force, including service with the Fifteenth Air Force as Commanding Officer of the 461st Bomb Group in Italy, during WWII, service in Moscow as the U. S. Air Attache, 1952-53, and as a student at the Army War College, Colonel Hawes was stationed at Maxwell AFB, Ala. His last duty was as Deputy for Academic Instruction at the Air War College.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jean Hermes Hawes, now residing at 2801 Chesapeake Place, Washington, D. C.; three children, Philip R., 16, Ann Adele, 14, and Howard Hermes Hawes, 11; and his mother, Mrs. Estelle Hawes of 839 Balboa Dr., Arcadia, Calif.

Maj. Gen. Lee Inspects New CF-100 Fighters

Maj. Gen. Robert M. Lee, USAF, Commander of 4th Allied Tactical Air Force, recently inspected the newest fighters in his command—the CF-100 all-weather fighters of No. 445 RCAF Squadron, based at No. 1 Fighter Wing, Marville, France.

Accompanied by his chief of staff, Air Commodore H. M. Carscallen, RCAF, the General was met there by Group Capt. D. J. Williams, base commander. After a luncheon in the Officers' Mess, General Lee was briefed on the operational capabilities of No. 445 (AW) Wolverine Squadron, by Wing Commander E. G. (Irish) Ireland, officer commanding.

The 18-ton Canadian-designed-and-built fighters flew from Ottawa to Marville via Goose Bay and Iceland, making the trans-Atlantic crossing in four hours 15 minutes (air time).

HQMC Plans Up-Grades For 950 M/Sgts.; Orders Changes In Six-Stripe Program

About 750 master Marine Corps sergeants will add 1st sergeant diamonds to their stripes and 200 will don the star of sergeant major by 1 April 1957.

This is a large increase over the total of 247 appointed to both ranks last year. The board, which meets on 15 February, will choose 80 per cent of the total requirements to the rank of 1st sergeant and 67 per cent of the requirement to the rank of sergeant major.

Remaining openings in these ranks will be filled by Fiscal Year 1960. After that, annual appointments will be made to fill vacancies created by retirements and other causes of attrition.

The increase in selections is the result of revisions in the Marine Corps' Sergeant Major and 1st Sergeant Program, including a change which permits the board to consider any master sergeant category. In the past, consideration was given only to those with combat designations.

When the appointments are issued, however, the selectees will be shifted to combat or combat support fields. These are: 03, 07, 08, 13, 18, 21, 23, 25, 30, 35, 64, 65, 66 and 67.

Although this year's board is considering all categories of six-strippers, boards which are convened in succeeding years will consider only 1st sergeants for the rank of sergeant major and master sergeants for the grade of 1st sergeant.

Future boards will consider only those six-strippers who have had two years of service in lower grade.

After appointments under this year's program are effected a precedence list will be established. It will be similar to the officers' lineal list. This is the first time in the history of the Corps that such recognition has been given to the top enlisted ranks.

Selectees will be required to pass a physical examination to determine their fitness to assume duties at sea or in the field.

Headquarters has set a 15 February deadline for receipt of applications for consideration by this year's board.

PX Officials Study Uniform Problems

From first page—

Army officers will be required to own both uniforms by 1 October 1957.

The special conference was called after the Department of the Army prescribed that the Exchange Service develop plans to procure and stock a sufficient quantity of uniforms and accessories to meet the requirements of Army officers throughout the world.

At regular semiannual conferences in March and September this year, plans were discussed to stock the new uniforms, although at that time it was not known that the demand would reach such levels.

As a result, Col. Harold H. Shaller, Deputy for Operations, Hq A&AFES, called the special conference to review sample garments submitted by all interested manufacturers and determine approved sources of supply. In addition, plans were announced for quality control, plant inspections, procurement, sales, and merchandising procedures.

Besides the 1 October 1957 date for the introduction of the new uniforms, conferees heard another directive establishing 1 May 1957 as the date for wearing new accessories with the officers' summer uniforms. These include Army green caps, black neckties, and tan cotton poplin shirts. Black shoes and socks were introduced last September.

Reviewing plans for merchandising the new uniforms, conferees heard talks which stressed the importance of the Uniform Department in exchanges, especially during the period from 1 Aug. to 1 Oct. next year.

The comprehensive plans, which will be issued to all exchanges shortly after the first of the year, were prepared by merchandising specialists at Hq A&AFES. They were outlined for the conferees by Richard L. Glaser, Chief Merchandising Division, Hq A&AFES. They call for either expanding present uniform sections, or providing separate uniform branches at the larger installations. Instructions also suggest the rearrangement of fixtures, training of qualified salesclerks, information on display, payment plans, and the care of the new uniforms and accessories.

After inspecting the sample garments submitted, the conferees decided on supply sources. Since A&AFES stocks only those items which conform to Army regulations, extensive plans were outlined to control the supply at exchanges. Besides plant inspections, there will be further checks on the uniforms at regional office warehouses, and at installation exchanges as they are received.

Dan A. Kimball Urges Education In Sciences

A nation-wide "grass roots" campaign to interest American youth in pursuing careers in science was urged 7 Dec. by Dan A. Kimball, former Secretary of Navy and now President of Aerojet-General Corporation of Azusa, Calif.

"The opportunities for science to provide mankind with new wonders for a better life for millions are limitless," he said. "But progress can be rigidly limited if we fail now to train tens of thousands of men and women for careers in science so that they can make these scientific potentialities come true."

In a speech before the newly organized Science Board of Visitors of Iowa Wesleyan College, Mr. Kimball proposed that educators and community leaders urged parents and young people to enter scientific fields. He stressed the importance of encouraging interest in scientific pursuits at an early age... in grammar and secondary schools. Only by this means, he said, will the colleges and other higher institutions be able to further the training of the vast number of scientists which will be needed.

FHA Moves To Force Military Housing Builders to Reveal Construction Costs

Owners of five military housing projects have been directed by Federal Housing Commissioner Norman P. Mason to call a meeting of preferred stockholders for the purpose of electing new corporate directors. Mr. Mason said that letters were sent to the presidents of the apartment corporations in an initial move to gain FHA control of the rental projects.

Reason for the action, said FHA, is the failure of the owners to comply with the Commissioner's request for construction cost information.

The five projects built to house armed forces personnel and which figure in the move to gain cost data on so-called "Wherry housing" projects are: Page Manor, Dayton, Ohio; Stone River Homes, Rutherford, Tenn.; Randolph Village, Randolph AFB, Tex.; and Billy Mitchell Village and Lackland Village, San Antonio, Tex.

This marks the first time that military housing built with the proceeds of FHA-insured mortgage financing has been the object of such severe measures to obtain the desired cost information. Similar action may be taken against the other military projects which still have not filed unless they supply the cost data requested of them by Commissioner Mason. Well over half of the projects queried have complied with instructions.

If the project officials fail to call the meeting as directed, FHA as preferred stockholder in all the corporations will hold meetings to remove existing directors and select new ones.

FHA says its right to assume control in these cases was established in federal court last year. The United States District Court in Newark, New Jersey ruled that as preferred stockholders, FHA had the right to assume control where provisions of the corporate charter were found to have been violated. One of the provisions in each of the charters is a requirement that all information such as that concerning cost of construction or operation of the project be made available to the Federal Housing Administration upon request.

Commissioner Mason emphasized that there were no allegations of improper use of the mortgage proceeds in these cases. He said FHA was merely trying to determine construction costs.

Russian Navy Continues Sub Build-Up; U. S. Leads In A-Power And Guided Missiles

By the end of 1958, the Russian Navy will be equipped with almost 600 submarines.

This prediction is contained in the new American edition of "Jane's Fighting Ships," authoritative British shipping journal, published in the U. S. by McGraw-Hill.

"The Russian submarine fleet now numbers over 400 units of which a large percentage are new construction long-range boats," Jane's states. "In each of the calendar years 1957 and 1958 Russia is expected to commission about 75 to 85 new modern submarines."

In addition, the USSR "has built more cruisers and more destroyers since the end of the Second World War than all the nations of the rest of the world combined."

According to Jane's, "These surface ships are modern and incorporate the latest technological equipment. They are fully manned in active commission and are constantly undergoing rigorous training operations, demonstrating the important position the control of the sea holds in Soviet grand strategy."

In contrast to this "intense activity" in Russia and to "intense American activity in the production of aircraft carriers," the British publication notes that "Great Britain has ordered no large warships since the end of the Second World War." The book also states that "The first British operational submarine ordered since 1945 (apart from two experimental submarines) was launched in 1956."

United States efforts in the field of atomic energy and guided missiles "already outstrip the combined achievements of all the other navies in the world," Jane's states. The U. S. Navy "will have 47 guided missile ships by 1961, and in ten years' time, a fleet of 75 atomic powered submarines."

Jane's says also that Russia reportedly "is developing an atomic powered submarine and is believed to have an experimental craft of this nature on trial," and is planning "a giant atomic powered naval icebreaker of the size of a large cruiser or small battleship."

However, Jane's states, the U. S. Navy's new 11,000-ton guided missile cruiser (included in the FY '57 shipbuilding program) marks the first marriage of nuclear power and missiles and gives the USN a chance to build a "Navy of the future before other nations are off the mark with either a ship solely propelled by nuclear power or by a true guided missile ship, and long before other nations build an operational warship with a combination of both."

Technical data, tables and descriptive notes in the 56-57 Jane's have been amplified and revised, and some 440 new illustrations have been inserted.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

Ordnance Meeting Hears Navy Research & Development Needs

NEW YORK CITY
NAVY research and development leaders told the recent meeting of the American Ordnance Association here that:

- Future weapons systems will have to make full use of miniaturization and automation, cost less and be more reliable.
- Instrumentation needs are growing as the Navy assumes "an ever increasing role" in national defense.

RAdm. Rawson Bennett, USN, Chief of Naval Research, said "complex new systems are pricing themselves out of the market," but even if the dollars are found, there won't be enough men to maintain the equipment unless it is made more reliable.

Reliability "must come up," he said, and "costs of all kinds must come down" or even the wealthy United States "will wind up with too few incredibly wonderful weapons."

Capt. W. R. Hunnicutt, USN, of the R&D Division, Naval Bureau of Ordnance, told the Association that the technological advances which the Navy is now undergoing makes the professional Navy officer "confident that the Navy's role in the national defense has passed through the post war nadir and will continue to assume an ever increasing role."

These advances have raised new instrumentation problems, he said. For example, the advent of guided missiles calls for new optical and electronic means of determining missile track.

Inertial guidance and the ballistic missile calls for gyroscopes, accelerometers and sensing devices of the highest accuracy "with increasing requirements in the offing."

The Navy's increasing role in underwater operations brings requirements "for increased knowledge of underwater phenomena and of instrumentation to measure those phenomena."

He told members of the Association that their "ideas in the field of underwater instrumentation, detection, target classification and weapons are most important to the Navy and to the nation."

Improved instrumentation also is needed in the aviation field, Captain Hunnicutt said. "Not only will instruments be required to detect and analyze target motion but they will be required to perform almost all of the remaining functions of combat which were formerly done by the pilot."

Marquardt Is Contractor In Nuclear Program

Marquardt Aircraft Company of Van Nuys, Calif., has been designated as a prime contractor in the Air Force Aircraft Nuclear Propulsion program.

The company currently is engaged in ANP studies looking toward the development of advanced nuclear propulsion systems.

Marquardt has pioneered in the ramjet field, having successfully developed and flight-proven a supersonic hydrocarbon-fueled engine. Ramjets of this type are now in production for missile application.

The company has also done extensive work in the turbojet field including the development of afterburners, variable exit and reverse thrust nozzles, engine controls and variable inlet controls for turbojet engines.

Gen. Gruenther Picked For NSIA Honor Award

General Alfred M. Gruenther, USA, until recently Supreme Allied Commander Europe and now President-elect of the American National Red Cross, will receive the 1956 James Forrestal Memorial Award from the National Security Industrial Association, it is announced by Dan A. Kimball, former Secretary of the Navy, and now chairman of the Forrestal Award Committee and President of Aerojet-General Corporation.

The Award is presented annually to "a distinguished American whose leadership has promoted significant understanding and cooperation between Industry and Government in the interest of national security." President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, USAR-Ret., Chairman of the Board of Radio Corporation of America, have previously received the award.

General Gruenther will be given the medal and citation at a special NSIA dinner in Washington, D. C., 28 Feb., and will deliver a major address.

SAGE Unit At Ft. Lee

The 4625th Air Defense Wing (SAGE) has been activated at Ft. Lee, Va., under the command of Col. Harold A. Gunn, USAF, former Air Force Senior Advisor to the 108th Fighter Interceptor Wing of the New Jersey Air National Guard.

No date has been set for the unit to become operational. Facilities for the ADW are under construction now.

MATS Award Airlines Contracts For O'Seas

The Military Air Transport Service has announced the award of contracts to six airlines for airlift over the Atlantic and the Pacific totaling $7,600,000.

Contracts cover air transport service for MATS in the coming year, January through June 1957, and range from $729,000 to $2,207,000. They call for the airlift of 350 tons of cargo between Travis AFB and Tokyo; the flying of 125,000 miles in the Pacific inter-island area and air transport of 2,000 passengers between U. S. and Europe/United Kingdom.

Airlines receiving awards for the six-month period are: Atlantic area—Capitol Airways, Inc. and Slick Airways, Inc.

Pacific area—Transocean Air Lines, Inc., Resort Airlines, Inc., and Overseas National Airways, Inc.

Pacific inter-island area—World Airways, Inc.

In addition to the above contracts, call type contracts over the same period were awarded to 21 airlines for additional airlift, if required. Call type contracts specify that when MATS asks for airlift the airline will supply it, when it has the capability.

The use of six-month term contracts on a guaranteed basis have been negotiated at the request of Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, Commander, MATS, to offer, as far as possible, stabilized requirements for commercial airlift. This type of contract should permit contracting airlines to provide a higher performance standard of operation for the government. Contracting airlines will synchronize their operation with MATS flights.

Companies awarded call type contracts are: California Eastern Airlines, Fly-Tiger, General Airways, Central Air Transport, Inc., Great Lakes Airlines, Los Angeles Air Service, Inc., Meteor Air Transport, Inc., Northwest Airlines, Overseas National Airways, Inc., Pan American World Airways, Seaboard and Western Airlines, Inc., Trans Caribbean Airways, Inc., Trans World Airlines, Inc., Twentieth Century Airlines, United States Overseas Airlines, Capitol Airways, Inc., Slick Airways, Inc., Transocean Air Lines, Inc., Resort Airlines, Inc., Overseas National Airways, Inc. and World Airways, Inc.

AM Control Officer

Capt. Freddy L. Steadman, USAF, is the new Aircraft Maintenance Control Officer in the 6580th Field Maintenance Squadron at Holloman Air Development Center.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond
Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey

THREE Coast Guard retention boards will be convened at Headquarters in January.

The first board, which meets on 7 Jan., will consider 28 captains for involuntary retirement—21 will be retained on active duty.

The board will be comprised of Rear Admirals Raymond J. Mauerman, Henry C. Perkins, Frank A. Leamy, Harold C. Moore and Henry T. Jewell.

On the 22d, a board to consider aviation captains for retention on flying status will be convened. The board will review the records of 15 four-stripe fliers.

Board members are: Rear Admirals Kenneth K. Cowart and William W. Kenner; and, Captains Gaines A. Taylor, Richard M. Hoyle and Stanley C. Lincoln.

The third board, to choose three-stripe officers for retention on flying status, will meet on the 28th. This board will be comprised of Rear Admiral Perkins, and Captains John L. Steinmetz, Arthur J. Hesford, William D. Shields, Joe G. Lawrence, Robert E. McCaffery and Gilbert R. Evans.

Details concerning the board which will pick three permanent captains for flag rank were published in the 15 December edition of THE JOURNAL, page 31.

Gets Army Boat

The Coast Guard has accepted on transfer from the Army T-208, a 65-foot boat similar to other 65-footers now in Coast Guard service.

The vessel, which has been assigned hull number 65028-D, is being reactivated and will be assigned to Commander, First Coast Guard District at South Portland, Me., to replace the CG-80004-D.

USN Awards $26 Million For Additional Missiles

The Navy has awarded a $26 million contract to Chance-Vought Aircraft, Inc., Dallas, Texas, for additional production of Regulus I, the Navy's first operational attack missile, and for Regulus II, an advanced supersonic missile.

The Regulus II has been described by Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas as "a faster, long-range successor to Regulus I and usable from the same ships and submarines."

The new order, coupled with orders for Chance-Vought's F8U-1 Crusader fighter, brings the company's backlog of Navy orders to more than $500 million.

The most recent order for the Crusader, the Navy's fastest fighter and winner of the Thompson Trophy race with a speed of 1,015 miles an hour, was issued in September in the amount of $200 million.

USCG LCDR. GOES TO CONGRESS

Charles E. Chamberlain, a former lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard Reserve, was elected to the U. S. Congress from the sixth congressional district of Michigan.

A native of Lansing, Mich., Rep. Chamberlain began his Coast Guard career as an apprentice seaman on 11 Feb. 1942. He was commissioned an ensign on 19 June of the same year after completing the Reserve Officers' Training School at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. His first assignment was command of the 83-foot patrol boat CG-83301, operating out of the Naval Section Base, Ocracoke, N. C.

While in command of the patrol boat, he was commended by the base commander for valiant and efficient conduct in salvaging the Coast Guard Reserve boat CGR-3070 which was disabled in a dense fog and driving rain storm on 23 Dec. 1942.

During WWII, he commanded the Coast Guard-manned Army freight supply ship in the Pacific.

He resides with his wife, Charlotte, and their daughter, Charlotte, at 818 North Harrison Road, East Lansing, Mich.

Top Award Given To Army Civilian

Assistant Secretary of the Army (Financial Management) Chester R. Davis was presented the Decoration for Exceptional Civilian Service by Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker during a ceremony at the Pentagon on 11 Dec.

Mr. Davis retired from government service 15 Dec. and returned to civilian life. He became Assistant Secretary of the Army (Financial Management) on 10 March 1955.

A successor has not been named as yet.

A native of St. Charles, Illinois, Mr. Davis was senior vice president and director of the Chicago Title and Trust Company prior to his designation as Assistant Secretary of the Army. He will return to that post. He is also one of the trustees and president of the Chicago Title and Trust Foundation.

The text of the citation accompanying the award follows:

"For exceptional civilian service as Assistant Secretary of the Army for Financial Management from March 10, 1955 to December 15, 1956. By his diligent efforts and personal leadership, significant advances have been made in the formulation and development of effective financial management throughout the Army Establishment including the installation of the Army Command Management System, a major milestone in effective management control. Under his untiring leadership and guidance, the Army housing programs have been improved and expanded. Through his comprehensive grasp of military problems, occasioned in part by his long association with the Army, his unique ability to apply financial methods and techniques, and his tireless supervision, he has distinguished himself and reflected great and lasting credit upon the Army and the United States Government."

AF Casualty Service Gets In Line With Law

The Air Force is revising its casualty service program in light of the Servicemen's and Veterans' Survivor Benefits Act, Public Law 881, effective 1 Jan.

Line of duty investigation into deaths of AF members before the six months gratuity is paid survivors no longer will be required. P. L. 881 directs the services to pay the gratuity regardless of death circumstances.

The casualty reporting and notification system has been amended to require that a deceased member's base pay and pay grade be reported to Hq USAF. This information is used by the Veterans Administration to compute indemnity and compensation payments to surviving dependents. The Social Security Administration also needs this information to determine its survivor payments.

Information on the circumstances of certain deaths of AF members also will be required in casualty reports to Hq USAF. This information also will be forwarded to VA, which still must determine whether it can make payments to next of kin, based on whether or not the military member died in a line of duty status.

Representatives of local AF installations still will personally visit surviving next of kin to advise them of their rights and benefits. The casualty assistance regulation (AFR 30-12) will be broadened to cover AF Reservists and Air National Guard members on inactive duty training who die while traveling to or from training sites. Dependents of members of these two groups will have survivor benefit rights equal with active duty personnel under P. L. 881.

Finally, the Emergency Data form (DD 93) has been changed to eliminate the Servicemen's Indemnity section and to add spaces for a Social Security number and for indication of prior military service.

Chaplain Maurer To Carson

Chaplain (Col.) Paul H. Maurer, USA, who has served as post chaplain at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., since October, 1955, will assume similar duties at Ft. Carson, Colo., 7 Jan.

Chaplain Maurer's wife, Theola, is a patient at Fitzsimons General Hospital.

Building Expands At Missile Center

District Engineers have awarded nearly $6,000,000 in new construction contracts at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., bringing the total cost of building projects now in progress up to $19,300,000.

Funds for additional facilities costing "several millions" have already been allotted and contracts will be let as soon as blueprints are completed, according to Col. A. H. Lahlum, USA, resident engineer in charge of all construction.

This building activity is part of a general expansion program at the Army's center for rockets and guided missiles.

The greatest share of the new construction, which includes laboratory and testing facilities, shops and military housing, is for the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, one of the three major organizations on the post.

ABMA projects under way now amount to some $13,900,000.

The remainder of the current building program, $6,400,000, is for Redstone Arsenal.

The third organization, the Ordnance Guided Missile School, has no construction in progress at this time, but buildings, shops and classrooms costing more than $5,000,000 are on the drawing board.

Vermont's Move To Help Retired Officers Find Jobs and Homes Meets Wide Response

A program to assist retired officers of the Armed Services in finding residence, and employment, where desired, in Vermont initiated recently by U. S. Senator Ralph E. Flanders, has expanded far beyond expectations. Through the cooperation of Armed Services periodicals which publicized the program, letters of inquiry were received from officers stationed in all parts of the world.

Many of the officers seeking information about Vermont are doing it well in advance of their retirement date, but many more already retired, and those whose severance from the service will come within a year, have shown keen interest in Vermont as a place of residence and employment, according to Senator Flanders' office which is processing and answering these inquiries. About 50 per cent of the inquiries are from officers interested in teaching in Vermont, while another 30 per cent are interested in various types of engineering. Nearly all are qualified by education, and/or experience, for the types of employment sought.

The first placement under the Vermont program was that of Col. Dwight W. Caswell, USAF-Ret., of White Marsh, Md., who signed a contract to teach science and mathematics at the North Troy, Vt., High School. Colonel Caswell said he was "realizing a life-long ambition to enter the public school teaching field."

Colonel Caswell is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and Harvard University Law School. For several years he commanded teaching services and taught military law, science and mathematics.

It is interesting to note that officers writing for information about Vermont residence have ranged in age from 38 to 65 and their rank has been from Lieutenant to Colonel in the Army and Air Force, and from Lieutenant Commander to Captain in the Navy including, also, one Marine Brigadier General. Some have college and university backgrounds with a wide variety of service-acquired skills. Others have some lack of formal education but an outstanding record of service achievement. Some visited Senator Flanders' office in Montpelier within recent weeks and were placed in contact with potential employers in several sections of the state. Other officers have made appointments to go to Vermont later.

The Vermont committee and Senator Flanders have received interested cooperation from state departments, industry and private business in their effort to assist the retired officers. An analysis of the inquiries received to date shows that a large number of these officers possess skills which are in short supply in Vermont, not only in the teaching and engineering fields but in other areas of employment as well. Many applications for employment are at present being processed by various departments of state government, and the larger businesses and industries in the state. Some of these are from officers already retired and a larger number are from officers who will retire within the next 6 to 12 months. Aside from teaching, the area most open for employment in Vermont is in civil engineering, and the Vermont committee is hoping that there will be further inquiries from officers who are qualified in this field, as well as in all others.

Information concerning Vermont retired officers program can be obtained by writing: "Office of U. S. Senator Ralph E. Flanders, 92 State Street, P. O. Box 418, Montpelier, Vt."

Members of Senator Flanders' Vermont staff will give each inquiry personalized attention.

MAJ. GEN. SAMUEL R. BRETNALL, USAF-Ret., formerly Assistant CofS for Guided Missiles, has been named Vice President and Assistant General Manager of the Military Electronics Division of Motorola, Inc. He will supervise Motorola activities at Phoenix, Ariz.; Riverside, Calif., and Chicago, Ill., according to an announcement by Motorola President Robert W. Galvin.

RADM. RICHARD E. BYRD, USN-Ret., will be National Chairman of the 1957 Heart Fund Campaign. He succeeds General Mark W. Clark, USA-Ret., who has held the post for three years and who is President of The Citadel.

COL. HARMON E. BROYLES, USA-Ret., former Deputy G-4 at First Army Headquarters, Governors Island, N. Y., will teach in the Electrical Engineering Department of Clemson, S. C. Agricultural and Mechanical College starting next month. He and Mrs. Broyles, the former Jane Howard of Knoxville, Tenn., will make their home in Clemson.

COL. MARK V. BRUNSON, USA-Ret., has been named General Manager of the Pan American Bureau of Investigation, Suite 223, The International Merchandise Mart Building, 206 San Francisco St., El Paso, Texas. This Bureau specializes in civil and criminal investigations of a varied nature and operates in close cooperation with law enforcement agencies.

COL. GUY EMERY, USA-Ret., who has been an associate in the firm of Ansell and Ansell, attorneys at law, has been made a partner, according to an announcement by Samuel T. Ansell, Jr.

COL. LESLIE A. SKINNER, USA-Ret., pioneer rocket and guided missile expert of the Armed Forces, has been appointed Manager of Technical Operations of the Radio Corporation of America at White Sands Proving Ground, N. M. Colonel and Mrs. Skinner will reside in El Paso, Tex., shortly after the first of the year.

Col. Robert M. Springer, JAGD, USA-Ret., has been elected First Vice-President of American Budget Incorporated, a financial and Investment Corporation with its home office in San Antonio, Tex.

LT. COL. CHARLES H. BRITTON, USA-Ret., who was with the Bay Area Army Terminal Center at Ft. Mason, Calif., plans to become a high school teacher in Florida.

MAJ. FRANCIS M. KNEZOVICH, USA, will retire next month and continue in his same job as a Civil Service employee of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. He is chief of the topographic section in the Agency's Engineer Office.

USN Retires 84 Regular Officers On 1 Dec.

Rear Admirals Charles E. Perkins, USN, and Richard S. Silvis, MC, USN, head the list of 84 Regular officers who ended their careers on 1 December.

Included in the totals were nine captains, 13 commanders, 23 lieutenant commanders, 13 lieutenants, three lieutenants (jg), one ensign, and 15 chief warrant officers.

The officers listed below were retired for the indicated reasons:

Gen. Ankenbrandt Joins RCA In Executive Post

Maj. Gen. Francis L. Ankenbrandt, USAF-Ret., one of the foremost authorities on military communications and Director of Communications-Electronics in the Office of the JCS until his recent retirement, is understood to have been appointed to a key position in the Radio Corporation of America.

A 1926 USMA graduate, General Ankenbrandt, who will be 53 next month, holds a Master of Science Degree from the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale University.

He was Director of Communications for the Air Force before assignment to France in September 1951 as Assistant CofS for Communications of the Allied Air Forces in Central Europe. In October 1952, General Ankenbrandt was made Chief of Communications for SHAPE.

He returned to the U. S. in September 1954 to command the Airways and Air Communications Service and the following August was designated for the top JCS communications post.
